BOMB TERROR IN ANTWERP

RUSH FOR BIG GAMES TICKETS

BULLETIN—(From Herbert Temple, American War Correspondent.)

LONDON, Oct. 8.—Heavy reinforcements of men and artillery have reached the besieged garrison of Antwerp. Secrecy as to the identity of these troops is being maintained at the War Office.

A despatch from the AMERICAN correspondent in Antwerp early in the week stated that British troops and naval guns had reached Antwerp. This despatch shows how military movements are being concealed by the English government.

There is a new spirit of optimism here as to the Antwerp situation, despite the claims that are being made at Berlin. The Press Bureau informed the AMERICAN this afternoon that it was unable to confirm even the reported fall of one Antwerp fort.

NEW HUNT FOR LOST MILDRED

PRETTIEST GIRL TRAIL LEADS TO BANGOR

BANGOR, Me., Oct. 8.—Convinced that a new clew makes it really probable that Mildred Sullivan, "Pretties Girl in Aroostook," was alive last Sunday, the authorities began a new search here today.

Miss Sullivan has been missing over a month. The new clew is the story of a girl chum of Miss Sullivan that she saw the vanished girl last Sunday, boarding a car for Orono here.

The result of this information has been to revive interest in the case. After the three defendants had been held for the Grand Jury, it was expected the interim till November 17 would be occupied by secret investigations on the part of the authorities. But the new clew has for the time being ended the work of examining witnesses, and of searching the woods and ponds around Presque Isle for the body of the missing girl.

It is a girl named Mabel Estabrook, a gift of seventeen, who is sure she saw Mildred Sullivan last Sunday. And she knew the missing girl so intimately that it is almost inconceivable that she can be mistaken.

WAS PALE AND WEAK.

She met the girl face to face, and saw her board a car for Orono. The girl was pale and weak, and leaned upon the arm of an older red-haired woman.

The police are making special inquiries for this red-haired woman, both on the railroad by which the

BRAVES ON EDGE FOR WORLD'S BATTLE

Thousands of reserved seat tickets for the World's Series games between the Braves and Athletics were today sold to the great baseball loving public of New England.

The successful applicants for tickets for the title battles received their notices today. The box office at Fenway Park was opened at 8 o'clock this morning and thousands of persons waited in line until they received the valuable pasteboards.

George Babbitt of the Back Bay Hotel was the first person to receive a World's Series ticket. He was in line long before the box office opened.

Miss Elizabeth Murphy of No. 14 Monument court, Charlestown, was the first woman to get a ticket for the championship games. She was out at Fenway Park early and took her place in line with the rest of the big, happy crowd which stormed the present Braves' headquarters.

Reports from Philadelphia state that the Braves are fit for the opening game of the series, which will be played at Shibe Park tomorrow. Stallings' team is fighting mad as a result of the poor treatment it has received from the management of the Athletics and will battle harder than ever to down the Mackmen.

According to reports received in Boston from Philadelphia, Connie Mack refused the Braves the use of Shibe Park for this afternoon.

This action on the part of Mack caused Stallings to make a bitter attack on the chief of the world's champions and the methods of the management of his club.

The Boston players were also unable to get any tickets for the opening game in Philadelphia tomorrow.

It is not believed that the speculators have managed to get many of the tickets for the ball game in this city. There are about 15,000 reserved seats at Fenway Park and they have all been awarded to applicants.

Those who have not received a notification that their applications were honored have two chances to see the games played in Boston. Many of the "fans" who have been notified they can purchase reserved seats, will fail to call for them. Consequently there will be a number of seats left and these will be placed on public sale at 10 o'clock Monday morning.

Besides these seats there are more than 20,000 unreserved seats which will be sold on the days of the games. Therefore it looks as if nearly all who desire to see any of the championship battles may be able to do so.

Experience in the Boston games of the World's Series which was held in 1912, was that comparatively few persons were turned away from the park. There is an immense amount of seating room at Fenway Park.

ALLIES AID BESIEGED CITY; REPEL GERMANS

PARIS, Oct. 8.—A German aeroplane of the Taube type flew over Paris and the northern suburbs today and dropped two bombs on St. Denis. One of these injured three persons. The other bomb failed to explode.

The Zeppelin menace has added its terrors to the bombardment of Antwerp by the Germans, according to dispatches from the Belgian stronghold, via the Hague and London, under date of Wednesday.

These advices, which are not officially confirmed, say that at 11 a. m. and 3 p. m. yesterday Zeppelins appeared above the city and dropped bombs, destroying seven houses and killing a score of people.

A condition of panic among the populace, followed, it is stated, the avenues leading to the railroad station becoming black with terrified people, eager to escape from Antwerp. Invalids, cripples and even lunatics from the asylums, the dispatches say, were crowded into the railroad vans.

The situation quickly changed later in the day. "While at 2 o'clock even grown up men were weeping with terror and were fighting for places around the railway station," the cable tells us, "at 6 o'clock everybody was again certain that the forces would be able to hold out against the Germans and even throw them back across the River Nethe."

REINFORCEMENTS REACH CITY.

Large reinforcements of allies have arrived at Antwerp, according to a cable dispatch from Ostend today, and hope is now expressed by Belgian officials that the city will be able to hold out against the Germans.

The news of fighting in West Flanders, previously cabled, was construed by military experts as meaning that large bodies of British troops had been landed at Ostend and were being vigorously opposed. The later advices may mean that the British have successfully advanced and arrived at the temporary capital at atime when aid was most needed.

General bombardment of the city of Antwerp was begun by the Germans with great fury at 3 a. m. today, after another refusal of the garrison to surrender. Cable dispatches say that a destructive fire of shot and shell was directed upon the inner fortifications and the city proper.

A dispatch from Rotterdam, via London, this afternoon says that German forces attempting to advance upon Antwerp through the breach in the outer line of forts have been repulsed with

VON KLUCK WAR HERO.

Gen. Joffre His Only Equal.

A REAL NAPOLEON.

The following comment on the war was made by General McCrosky Butt of the United States army, who is a passenger on the Baltic now on the way to New York:

I really blame the war itself on the "peace at any price" cranks to whose criminally shorted-sighted propaganda the deplorable unpreparedness of both France and England is due.

I think the outstanding figure of this war so far is General von Kluck. He has shown more real Napoleonic generalship than any other commander, though General Joffre may yet prove his master.

I believe Germany will be defeated in the end, but only by the swamping number of Russians. I doubt if France and England will succeed in crossing the Rhine.

DUKE, SUED FOR DIVORCE, THREATENS TO "EXPOSE" HANANS

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Society circles are stirred today by the extraordinary outcome of the international romance of the Duchess Elizabeth Frances de Majo Durrazzo, sister of John H. Hanan, the millionaire shoe manufacturer, who seeks a divorce naming "Mr husband was a convicted thief and a fugitive from justice when she, ignorant of these facts, married the duke, nearly ten years her junior, here last February.

The duke's title is unquestioned. Served with the papers in the divorce suit, he is said to have written a letter to Mrs. John H. Hanan, threatening "exposure" if the case was not dropped.

The romance began in the Summer of 1912. Mr. and Mrs. Hanan and their sister were cruising the Mediterranean on their yacht "Surf" they met the Duke who, with several other noblemen, was their guest at an entertainment of great brilliancy.

DUKE ROBBED EMPLOYER.

The engagement was announced on January 13 last. The splendid wedding over—an event that brought society friends from all the big cities of this country and G. Fara Forni, Italian consul-general in this city—the duke and his bride started to the South and returned to New York to sail for Naples, where they were later to meet Mr. and Mrs. Hanan and the "Surf," and at the call of romance again steam through the Mediterranean.

The duke's present address was not to be ascertained today. As for the duchess, her brother said she was in seclusion. They have been separated since May 1, when, following his arrest for fighting in front of the Hotel de Paris, Monte Carlo, it was discovered that he was wanted in Paris to serve a term of three years for robbing his employer, a hotel keeper, in 1912.

"Before the duke and my sister left here on March 23," Mr. Hanan said today, "he asked me to advance him about $600.

"The request was strange, because prior to the wedding he said he would not ask for any share of my sister's fortune. I asked him the reason. He wanted to repay a loan made by a friend in Paris. Couldn't he wait until we reached Paris? No, it was so urgent he had to send the money by cable. I gave him the sum asked and he cabled it.

"We were in Monte Carlo on the evening of May 2. Mrs. Hanan and I, my brother and his wife, and the Duchess were in our rooms at the Hotel de Villa. The Duke had gone out for a stroll. Some short time after he had left us I was requested to go with the Duchess to the Monaco police station. There we found the Duke. He had been insulted in front of the hotel by another man. He had hit the other man, who had returned the blow. Both were arrested and charged with what we here call disorderly conduct.

LOST CASH GAMBLING.

"I tried to give bail for the Duke. It was refused and I was told to go to police headquarters the next morning when the case was called. I went there. The Duke was sentenced to eight days.

"I protested against this and to get to the root of the affair sought the chief of police to learn why such severe action had been taken.

"On introducing myself to the chief he told me the situation was far more serious than he expected. In looking over the records as is customary, to learn if the prisoner had been concerned in other illegal acts, he had found something. Would I look at it?

"It was a circular issued by the police of Paris asking for the apprehension of one Arturo Durrazzo. The description fitted the duke skin tight. It appeared that the duke had been employed in a confidential capacity as cashier by E. Pelechet Cornet, proprietor of the Hotel Richmond, Paris, and had full charge of the cash and paper securities. The circular continued to say that on April 11, 1913, the duke embezzled 1404 in cash and $1,600 in negotiable bonds from Cornet, had lost the money gambling and that the day following the hotel man made the discovery.

"The circular added that Cornet notified the police and that when an indictment was voted the duke skipped out before he could be arrested. In accordance with the French practice, the Duke, though fled, was convicted and sentenced to serve three years on his return to France.

SAYS DUKE CONFESSED.

"I said I could not believe it, and was certain of the Duke's innocence. Readily I felt that despite the accuracy of the description the guilty man was not my brother-in-law. I went to his cell and asked him about it. He floored me by confessing.

"I decided to stand by him for reasons unnecessary to detail, and, too, he had, he told me, returned the bonds soon after the theft and had made good the currency larceny when he borrowed the $600 from me in New York. He had cabled the money to his cousin to be turned over to Cornet. So I retained a good lawyer.

"I told my wife of this and we agreed it was wise to withhold the truth from the Duchess, thinking I could have the matter disposed of quietly by having the Paris court suspend sentence. But my sister, after two weeks, saw the Duke still in jail, refused to accept my explanation that in Monaco it was customary to hold a prisoner guilty of disorderly conduct for several weeks, she was not satisfied with that and so, at length, I had to tell her.

"Naturally, she collapsed, and announced that she and the Duke had seen the last of each other.

"I had to see the thing through. From Monaco the Duke was taken to Nice, and from there to Paris. I engaged additional counsel there and we went before the court with the full story. The trip from Nice to Paris was made quietly. We had informed the court of our situation and got permission to bring the Duke to Paris in custody of two private officers. When it was explained that restitution had been made the court seemed not too moved, for, instead of suspending sentence, it modified the sentence to six months in consideration of time already spent in jail at Monaco and Nice. Again we pleaded and the Duke's release was ordered with the provision that he had to serve six months if his conduct were not good for the next three years.

PLEA UNSUCCESSFUL.

"Meanwhile my sister had returned to the United States. She left Monte Carlo in June and made her home with my brother in Connecticut, keeping the fact of her return from her friends.

"On the day of the Duke's arrival he asked permission to see Mrs. Hanan and me. We granted it and greeted him as if all was right. He told me he would not oppose any move of my sister to have the marriage annulled. Our conversation was pleasant. I gave him some money. He advised him to stay away from my sister. However, he sailed for this country, July 11; we sailed July 15, and soon after reaching our home at Narragansett Pier the Duke called on us and implored us to use our offices to induce the Duchess to take him back. Of course she refused.

"Somehow he learned where the Duchess was. She was sitting on the piazza of my brother's country home, reading, when the Duke stepped up. She was astounded and ordered him away. He cried and on his knees begged her to let the past slip from her memory.

"He was there pleading for two hours. He went away unsuccessful. He came twice more, taking quarters at a nearby hotel. The third time he was forced away by a detective she had engaged.

"Despite what he had been and the deceit of which he had made us victims, he had our sympathy. He continued to write to the Duchess, but she was through with him and sent no replies.

"SETTLE FOR $50,000.

"For a short time my sister, through forgetfulness, sent him no money.

"Thinking he had lost his allowance, for good, he came to me and offered to 'settle' for $50,000. That suggestion he made in a letter to the Duchess, hinting that she would find it wise to comply, for fear of having the situation become public. Subsequently, my sister replied, I don't fear publicity. I have won this from your courts to save you. I'll never give you another cent.' And then she brought this suit.

"Soon after the Duke was served he sent a letter to Mrs. Hanan, in which was this paragraph: 'For the sake of the old friendship I feel it is my duty to inform you that if this case is to be pushed to the extreme limit, is will be very annoying to any one who has been connected with this unfortunate marriage.'"

The Terrible Tale of Terriers' Twain, Tad and Tommy

Tad's boss is a Winthrop Beach garage man. Tommy's boss is a restaurant man at the beach. Hence it fell out that Tad and Tommy fell out in an argument over the relative merits of the commissariat and motor cars. Both live in the Winthrop Beach station of the Narrow Gauge.

"Liar," growled Tad.

"You're another," growled Tommy.

Then it was a case of dog eat dog until the casualties were something terrific. Policeman McDonald finally grabbed Tad by the legs while Station Agent Gadsby got Tommy by the tail and the two warriors were jerked apart.

"Looks like the battle of the Aisne—a draw," said McDonald.

Tad and Tommy are bull terriers well known to the beach colony.

20 CHINESE 'STUDENTS' ARE HUNTED IN PLOT

Twenty Chinese brought to America and placed in Cushing Academy, Ashburnham, last November, as students, left for the Christmas holidays and are still being sought by the government as illegally in the country, according to Washington dispatches today. The Chinese are now declared to be working in laundries.

It is alleged that a Chinaman living in Seattle, where he was said to be engaged in the patent medicine business, paid the Chinese boys at Cushing Academy about the middle of November last year.

Evidence obtained from officers of the immigration service was to the effect that the students had scattered all over the United States and that the immigration authorities had been unable to catch any of them.

Charges of wholesale smuggling of Chinese into the United States in violation of the Federal Exclusion Act have been probed in a secret investigation by a sub-committee of the United States Commission on Industrial relations. Connivance of employes of the Federal Immigration service in the matter has been alleged, and Frank Tape, a Chinese inspector and interpreter, has been arrested at Seattle.

According to the charges made before the commission in its secret investigation, Seattle and Boston are the headquarters of the plotters.

Most of the evidence obtained by the sub-committee of the committee at its session in Boston was presented by Thomas Sullivan, attorney for the Massachusetts Laundrymen's Association.

"Come along with me," said Kennedy. The boy said he was Simon Weinstein, thirteen, of Salem. He was turned over to the State Board of Charities to be held for his parents.

WOMAN'S NOTE ADDS TO POND DEATH PUZZLE

A cheerful letter written by Mrs. Rebecca Smith, the victim of the mysterious drowning accident in Methuen, on the day of the tragedy, came to light today and set the authorities of Methuen and Lawrence to work all the harder in their attempt to recover her body, which is supposed to be at the bottom of Welch's Pond.

Frank C. Hoffmann, who declares Mrs. Smith committed suicide by leaping from their rowboat into the water and that he did his best to save her is being kept under surveillance by the Methuen police. He is assisting the officers in their search for the body.

Mrs. Mary J. Sullivan, Mrs. Smith's mother, who lives alone at No. 99 John street, Lowell, is positive that her daughter did not commit suicide. Mrs. Sullivan displays the following letter, received from her daughter in Lawrence on the morning following the tragedy:

Lawrence, Mass., Oct. 1, 1914.

Dear Mama:

Just a few lines to let you know that I am well and to hope that you are the same. Mamma, I hope Ned told you why I was unable to come up Saturday last, because I told him to be sure and tell you.

I suppose you were disappointed, Mamma, because I did not come to see you, but I will be up to see you this Saturday, sure, Mamma.

I don't want you to be worrying about me, Mamma.

PLANNED FOR VISIT.

I saw Lottie (Mrs. Frank C. Hoffmann) and she was as nice to me as she could be and she said that she thought that I was looking fine.

I wish I was with you tonight instead of writing, Mamma, but never mind, one more day and I will be. But it will be a long day, as I am working every day and trying to do the best I can. I was short of money last week, but I will try and have some money for you this week, as I did hate to go up to Lowell to see you with only a few cents with me, because I know how you would feel.

Mamma, I hope you will excuse me for keeping you waiting so long for this letter, but I must close now.

Hoping my letter will find you the picture of good health, and with my love to you and best wishes to Uncle Ned and all, I remain,

Your loving daughter,

REBECCA.

P. S.—Good night, Mamma, until Saturday. And may God bless you; and be sure and watch for me Saturday and tell Uncle Ned to be there when I come.

BECKY.

On the last page of the letter were fifty-seven (*) kisses, with the words: "All for you and Uncle Ned. Count them! Ha! Ha! Ha!"

Here is Mrs. Sullivan's story:

"My daughter a suicide? Never. Rebecca may not have always done what was right, but I will swear to High Heaven that that little girl never took her own life. And by drowning, too! Rebecca was as afraid of the water as any two-year-old child.

"Why did little Becky go out on the water at 10 o'clock at night? Why did she leave her hat behind her in the Hoffman cottage? I was out to the place where they said my daughter drowned and I didn't see any water in the boat in which Hoffmann says they were out rowing.

DEMANDS INVESTIGATION.

"The papers have been full of Hoffmann's story of how it happened, and my little girl—all the child I had in the world—lying at the bottom of that pond unable to speak her story from those closed lips which made music for my old ears.

"I will appeal to the State police, the Mayor of Lowell, to the District Attorney—anybody who will take the part of a poor woman and make a thorough investigation of my daughter's death. The lethargy of the Methuen police is exhilarating.

"If I was wealthy and Rebecca was a society girl instead of a poor mill-worker, there would be an awful fuss made over this affair. Won't somebody please come to the assistance of an old woman whose only child lies cold in death and unable to speak for herself?"

SCOUTS SUICIDE.

"Rebecca told her landlady, Mrs. Somers, at No. 223 Elm street, that she even bought a new waist and skirt that afternoon in order to keep her appointment with Frank Hoffmann in the evening. Does that look like suicide? And the letter with my Becky wrote me—does that look like suicide?

"How I waited to hear little footsteps along the pathway Saturday afternoon! How I read her cheerful letter over and over again, anticipating the week-end which she had promised to spend with me in Lowell! I'll die rather than accept the verdict as 'suicide.'

"If the coroner could only bring in a finding of 'accidental drowning' instead of 'suicide,' my old heart could rest in peace."

MRS. REBECCA SMITH, VICTIM OF METHUEN DROWNING MYSTERY

MARY GARDEN GOING TO WAR AS A NURSE

LONDON, Oct. 8.—Mary Garden has abandoned the stage for the time being and is going to the front as a Red Cross worker.

"I may never sing again," she said today. "I am intensely interested in my new work and impatient for real action. Having had no experience in nursing I shall help to remove the wounded from the battlefields. It is dangerous, yes, but what does it matter if I am not afraid? I am a fatalist, and I might as well die through a bullet as in any other way.

"At least, I will be doing some good. I expect to be at the front with the French troops next week. If I come through it with a whole skin perhaps I will be able to sing better than ever before. The experience will, at least, be broadening."

Back Bay Is to be Gaily Decorated for Columbus Day

Plans for the street and public buildings decorations on Columbus Day have been completed and the decorations are to be set up by Saturday.

The principal street decorations will be on Huntington avenue, from Copley square to Massachusetts avenue. The Public Library will be decorated with garlands and wreaths of laurel on a background of red and yellow bunting, surmounted by the national flag. At the street corners bounding the square and along Huntington avenue will be masts with pennants of buff and blue flying.

Downtown, City Hall, the Old State House and Faneuil Hall will be moderately decorated in similar style. On the Common, tall masts arranged in a circle 600 feet in circumference around the Parkman bandstand and parade ground will be bound together by festoons of laurel, and each mast will fly a banner of the city colors.

GERMANS CLAIM DOUAI CAPTURED FROM FRENCH

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, Oct. 8.—An official statement issued at the War Office at midnight, says:

OFFICIAL.

German Coat of Arms

Heavy fighting between great forces of cavalry continues at the western end of the battle line in France.

Infantry figures in the conflict occasionally. We took Douai from the French and they have been striving to drive us out for several days without success. We are making steady progress.

The capture of Fort Broechem at Antwerp was accomplished after heavy fighting. We captured their fifty-two field guns, four heavy batteries and many machine guns. The Belgians attacked our troops between the outer and the inner forts after we had effected a breach that allowed us to approach the city. They were repulsed.

Personalities of the Great War

COUNT ZEPPELIN, according to Berlin report, was offered the post of generalissimo of the German air fleet by the Kaiser. He replied: "I will accept when I come back from England."

THE HONORABLE GEOFFREY PEARSON, third son of Lord Cowdray, serving as an autocycle dispatch rider, has been killed by uhlans.

WILLIAM OSBORNE McDOWELL, New York peace advocate, has started a letter around the world on a peace mission. The letter is to be read in every country.

MRS. M. WHITLOCK, mother of Brand Whitlock, has sailed from London for the United States.

SISTER MARY MAGDALEN, an Augustinian nun whose home is in New York, has reached London on her way home from Belgium with the story of how the convent in which she was staying was wrecked by shells.

BARONESS VON WEDEL-JARLSBERG asked Pope Benedict, it is reported, to pray for Austria-Hungary. He replied: "I pray for peace and I trust in God's judgment that the deserving nations will be victorious."

PREMIER ASQUITH'S three eldest sons—he has five sons—have volunteered for service at the front. One failed to pass the medical examination, having just recovered from illness, but the other two are training with their regiments.

THE DUKE OF TECK (TETTENBERG, cousin of the Czar, questioned about rumors of a truce until the coming Christmastide, replied:

"These rumors are absolutely absurd, our Czar has sworn to his allies to destroy Germany and Austria. The Czar's troops are adept at Winter campaigning."

COLONEL SAM HUGHES, Canadian minister of militia, who has sailed for England, will probably go to the front with the Canadian troops.

PRESIDENT POINCAIRE, accompanied by Premier Viviani and War Minister Millerand, has returned to Paris after a visit to General Joffre's headquarters in the field.

PREMIER ASQUITH has two sons training with their regiments. A third failed to pass the medical examination.

EARL GRAY, Lord Aberconway, Sir Charles W. Macara, Sir Robert Hadfield, Sir Edward H. Holden, Sir George Reid, Sir Owen Philipps, Sir James Heath and Sir John Taverner conferred today in London with a view to the organization of the commerce of the British empire.

SIR ARTHUR PINERO, the playwright, asked what effect the war will have on the arts in general, replied: "They will emerge from the vicissitudes, under which they must suffer a temporary eclipse, strengthened, purified and expanded. I think this great war will do vast good to the arts of all the countries affected."

M. TURPIN, MAKER OF DEADLY TURPINITE USED BY FRENCH

Amazing tales about the latest death dealing explosive, "Turpinite," invented by M. Turpin, are told to the effect that the composition has been used by the French in the recent fighting with such a devastating effect that whole battalions of German infantry have been found dead in their trenches, standing bolt and upright and still holding their rifles in firing attitude, as though suddenly petrified. It is said to be manufactured at a special factory near Paris, the shells being finished in a private laboratory by Turpin and two assistants working behind closed doors.

GERMANS IN SOISSONS REDOUBT WIPED OUT BY MINE EXPLOSION

PARIS, Oct. 8.—A report which has just reached Paris of the blowing up of the German redoubt north of Soissons gives the following details:

"The Germans were so strongly intrenched that the French and British should have been unable to dislodge them. Attack after attack was made, but the rifle and machine gun fire of the invaders mowed down the soldiers of the coalition forces. Finally French and English soldiers dug intrenchments a couple of hundred yards distant from the German lines under the protection of a hot fire. Under the direction of a British engineer's force soldiers set to work and dug deep tunnels under the earthworks. The tunnels were filled with dynamite with electric contacts, so that it could be exploded by pressing a button. The French and British then retired and the charges were set off. Every German in the trench was killed."

WHAT RULERS SAY OF FIGHTING FORCES IN THE GREAT WAR

PRES. POINCARE TO KING GEORGE
Praising British Troops

"I seize this opportunity of renewing my felicitations and shall be grateful if you convey them to the splendid army now fighting fraternally beside the French."

KING GEORGE, REPLYING TO POINCARE
Lauds French Forces

"I will gladly convey your message of congratulations to my troops, who are proud to be fighting side by side with the gallant French army."

KAISER TO KING OF SAXONY
Sees Glorious Victory

"The spirit of the troops is excellent, and with such an army we can finish the rest of our task gloriously and victoriously. The Almighty will stand by us."

EXTEND GREAT BATTLE LINE INTO BELGIUM

heavy losses. It adds that the Germans still hold Termonde and Alost, but that they have lost Lendelede.

PUSH GERMANS NORTH OF ARRAS.

That the Germans have been forced by the allies' offensive in the great battle of the Aisne to withdraw north of Arras is the chief announcement made in the official French statement issued in Paris this afternoon. It declares that at no point have the Germans been able to advance and that the conflict is going on under conditions favorable to the success of the allies.

This refers, it is probable, to the region along the Belgian frontier. The German forces involved is probably the German cavalry expedition reported for several days. This region is far from the German lines of communication and the report doubtless means only that the French have checked the attempted German cavalry raid. Arras is about twelve miles south of Lille.

The cavalry engagements have extended almost as far as the coast, the Paris statement says. This indicates that the Germans and the allies have spread out as far westward as possible in their counterflanking movement.

The German official report issued at Berlin at midnight announces that Dontai has been retaken from the French in the heavy fighting that continues at the northwestern end of the line in the great battle of the Aisne.

"Continued success" for the Germans is claimed. Infantry figures in the fighting only in a minor way, the cavalry being chiefly engaged.

The battle has finally been extended to Belgian soil, and furious fighting is reported to be in progress between the Germans and the allies around Menin, Ypres, Poperinghe, Courtai, Vaereghem and Audenarde. These towns are in Flanders not far from the French boundary.

The grand total of men now engaged in eastern France and Belgium is approximately 4,000,000, and the battle line is now about 200 miles long. Beginning in the Woevre district of Lorrain, it stretches westward to the Somme River, from which point it swings sharply to the northeast into Belgium.

There have been twenty-six days of fighting in this titanic engagement and the end is not in sight.

Part of the Canadian force of 33,000 men arrived in England today and was sent to inland training camps.

The capture of 7,500 Russian prisoners is announced in a report from the German general staff on operations in the eastern theatre of war. The report follows:

"Attacks by the Russians in the government of Suwalki have been repulsed, the enemy losing 2,700 prisoners and nine machine guns. In minor successful engagements in Poland we captured 4,800 prisoners west of Ivangorod."

London dispatches say that eleven warships, including two German torpedo boat destroyers, were sunk yesterday by British submarines. Six Austrian torpedo boats and destroyers were lost by contact with their own mines in the Adriatic. Three German ships, a cruiser and two gunboats, were sunk in Kia Chau Bay.

FIRST CONTINGENT OF TROOPS FROM CANADA NOW IN ENGLAND

LONDON, Oct. 8.—Part of the contingent of 33,000 men sent by Canada for service in the war landed in England today and were sent to an inland training camp. Their stay at the training camp is expected to be brief, but War Secretary Kitchener is determined that no troops shall go to the front until fully prepared. The ships carrying the contingent to England were headed by the liner Francesita, which carried the staff officers. The second boat was the Lapland.

GERMANS DRIVEN NORTH OF ARRAS, SAYS PARIS REPORT

French Coat of Arms

PARIS, Oct. 8.—The official statement on the war situation, issued at 3 p. m. follows:

(OFFICIAL.)

On our left wing, in the northern region, the enemy has made no progress at any point. He has withdrawn at certain points, particularly at the north of Arras, where the conflict is spreading out under conditions favorable to us. The operations of the two cavalry forces are now spreading out almost as far as the North Sea.

Between the Somme and the Oise, in the region of Roye, the enemy is always in force, but we have retaken the greater part of the positions which we had been compelled to yield previously.

At the north of the Aisne the compactness of the German troops appears to have diminished.

At the centre, between Rheims and the Meuse, there is nothing to report. On the heights of the Meuse, between Verdun and St. Mihiel, the enemy has withdrawn to the north of Hatton-Chatel. He continues to hold St. Mihiel and some positions to the north of St. Mihiel on the right bank of the Meuse.

In the Woevre region the violent attacks which the enemy has attempted to the east of Apremont have been repulsed.

On the right wing (Lorraine and the Vosges) there is no change.

In Russia, on the front of East Prussia, the Russian offensive continues. There is sharp fighting on the frontier West of Suwalki.

100,000 FLEE FROM BESIEGED CITY OF ANTWERP INTO HOLLAND

By LUDWIG VON KLEIN,

Staff Correspondent of the American.

ROTTERDAM, Oct. 8.—One hundred thousand refugees—men, women and children—have fled from Antwerp in anticipation of its capture by the Germans.

They are sorely taxing the resources of the towns and villages in the south of Holland, it to which they have been flocking for five days. Most of the refugees are destitute. None has more than a few possessions carried in small bundles.

Roodendaal, near the frontier, is filled with homeless. A correspondent there sends the following:

"This place is a big mass of homeless, weeping men, women and children. The scenes are terrible. Nuns are bringing in sick orphan charges. Men and women are sobbing and wringing their hands in absolute despair. Children are searchin for lost parents. Mothers weep piteously as they make a fruitless search for their children.

"All houses are overcrowded, but thousands more continue to arrive, adding to the grief that cannot be comforted.

RUSSIANS OPEN THE GREAT BATTLE ALONG THE VISTULA

PETROGRAD, Oct. 8.—The War Office today makes this official announcement:

OFFICIAL.

Russian Coat of Arms

The main Russian army in Poland has taken the offensive against the Austro-German forces along the Vistula River.

In the meantime the Russian attack on the Germans driven from Suwalki is increasing in strength. Naval guns have been brought up to shell the fortified positions occupied by the enemy in the Masurian Lake region. This was necessary because the German guns had a longer range than our field artillery could cope with.

Five of the forts at Przemysl have been silenced by our guns. It is apparent that the Galician stronghold will have to yield or be destroyed. Our heavy artillery has completely destroyed two forts.

The stubborn defence of the garrison indicates that it is largely composed of German soldiers, who replaced the Austrian soldiers before the fortress was invested. Several sorties have been attempted but these now seem to be losing in strength.

FOR DANDRUFF, FALLING HAIR OR ITCHY SCALP---25 CENT DANDERINE

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you can not have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness, and itching of the scalp, the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say the was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?

MRS. CARMAN WILL ACCUSE MAN AS SLAYER

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—The defence that will be put in for Mrs. Florence Conklin Carman when she is tried on the charge of having murdered Mrs. Louise Bailey will not only prove Mrs. Carman's innocence, but will come close to proving the guilt of a certain other person, who will be revealed as the real slayer.

George Morton Levy, attorney for the President doctor's wife, who will soon face a jury for trial, made this declaration today.

"We will first outline and then prove a story which will amaze every one in Nassau County and elsewhere who has followed the case since the night of June 20. We will show a man did the killing, and we will show why he did it.

"Testimony will be given which will be of a character to be added, 'that we have three times as much evidence against this man as the State has against Mrs. Carman, and they regarded their case as strong enough to justify indicting her for first degree murder. If I were the man who will be named when we bring our defense before the jury, I'd be afraid to go before a jury for my life.

"Of course, with this element in our case, my associate, Surrogate John J. Graham, and I are absolutely certain of Mrs. Carman's acquittal, and this isn't the stereotyped statement every lawyer makes before his case is heard. I mean it. I don't think there is a chance for her to be convicted in any degree whatever."

Dunlop, Tampico Hero, Takes Bride in East Boston

Robert W. Dunlop of East Boston, a hero of the Tampico incident which almost resulted in war between the United States and Mexico, has married Agnes R. Sharpe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan M. Sharpe of Sumner street, East Boston.

Dunlop was in the party of marines in the launch of the U. S. S. Dolphin that tied up at the wrong landing at Tampico. They were arrested by Mexican soldiers and taken to the firing line. The Mexican officials reconsidered their mistake and sent the men back to their ship. Rear-Admiral Mayo demanded a salute to the flag and the refusal of the Mexicans caused the seizure of Vera Cruz.

Barber Calls 'Next' as He Is Arrested

Charles Hammel, thirty-three, of No. 77 Carver street, a barber, who the police allege is a fugitive from justice, is under arrest. He is wanted in Danville, Ill., on a charge of larceny of $125 by means of worthless checks. When two inspectors walked into the barber shop where he works he called "Next."

Why Cadum Is Good for Skin Diseases

The important thing in treating many skin diseases is to keep water away from the inflamed parts and make the covering as thin as possible. This, according to a very distinguished New York physician, seems to kill the germ and set up the healing process quickly. Cadum, the well-known skin remedy, supplies that kind of a covering and keeps the air out. This covering consists of petrolatum and white wax, which Cadum Ointment. Two other ingredients of Cadum are zinc oxide, which dries up the water that comes from the sores, and oil of cade, which is one of the oldest and best known remedies for Eczema. Physicians everywhere employ oil of cade more often, perhaps, than any other one thing in treating Eczema. Cadum costs 50c for a trial box, while the 25c box contains nearly four times as much as the 10c size.

GUYED TO BOSTON.

By MORTON BIRGE.

VIII.—Copley Square.

Copley Square is an open-face triangle entirely surrounded by architecture. It is Boston's one best bet in the building line.

When the cultured Bostonian—which is rank redundancy—is compelled to listen to a New Yorker's ravings about Fifth avenue and the Pennsylvania Terminal, he says crushingly: "You have never seen Copley Square, of course?"

For several months the Square was a convenient catch-all for the Nawa Construction Company, during the building of the Boylston street subway. Now the three-cornered garden plot in the middle of the Square is again exposed to the sunlight and the ideas of landscape reformers.

The architectural harmony of the Square was once marvellous by the entrance of a heavy villain in the form of an extra story to the Hotel Westminster, which topped the aerial sky line. The extra story was forcibly removed, giving rise to an erroneous report that the popular song: "A little Bit Off the Top," which was then current, was designed as the hotel's national anthem. Since this structural error was rectified the Westminister has pursued its way with all the piety its name implies.

Copley Square is bounded on one side by the second largest circulating and reference library in the United States, the Boston Public Library. The land and building cost $2,500,000. For size, beauty of decoration, books, methods and general usefulness the B. P. L. is acknowledged to have rival institutions looking like the Dove of Peace trying to build a nest on the cathedral at Rheims.

The Boston Museum of Fine Arts formerly was housed on the Square but the museum outgrew its clothes and moved out on Huntington avenue. Now the Copley-Plaza Hotel adorns the old museum site. Where people once went to the museum to see what there was in ancient life and luxury, they now go to the hotel for modern articles.

Wants Lenders to Aid Farmers

CURLEY FAVORS VACATIONS FOR CITY LABORERS

Mayor Curley told the United Improvement Associations at their monthly meeting at the Boston City Club he approves and will further the passage of the act for a two weeks' vacation for laborers in the employ of the city of Boston. This is one of the matters which will come before the voters of Boston at the State election.

"There is no reason to my mind why the laborer should not enjoy the same privileges as the supervisors, clerks and other employes who participate in the same payrolls," said the Mayor. "Their labor is more arduous and in most cases their supervision is more strict.

"When assuming the office of Chief Executive of the municipality, upon investigation I found that instead of there being more laborers than supervisory employes, there were more supervisors than men performing the actual work required by the city in the care of its sewers, streets and water mains. It is my intention to remedy this condition just as soon as circumstances will permit thereof.

"When it is possible for me to undertake this change, and I hope the time will not be far distant, the outcome will be that instead of there being a supervisor for every four or six laborers, there will be but one supervisor for every forty of these men who perform for the city real constructive work.

"One million, one hundred thousand dollars will be spent on new streets this year and with equal rights to every section of the city."

LOWELL, Oct. 8.—Three Lithuanians, employed at the American Hide and Leather Company plant, are being held here today on suspicion of the murder of Charles Gingras, a policeman, in the beam room of the plant, who was hacked to death Friday morning.

HOGANS SEEK NEW NAME FOR SAKE OF GIRLS

Mrs. E. J. Hogan says she and her family first picked the name of Homans as their choice for the future, not because it is "society," but because it involved the least possible change from Hogan, at the same time giving the English effect they sought.

Mrs. Hogan and her family are the ones who asked the Probate Court for permission to take the name of Homans. The Homans family of Back Bay note objected. Finally the Hogans compromised on the name Homan, leaving off the final "s" from Homans and easing the feelings of the Homanses.

In an interview today Mrs. Hogan said:

DON'T KNOW HOMANS.

"Homans was not suggested to us by looking in the blue book or social registers. It merely came to us because it is so near the name we have been used to. We do not know Lawyer Homans. We certainly did not intend to force our way into his social register standing. We merely took the name owing to the fact that we would only have to change one or two letters, and we would become English. That's all.

"It is for the children, who are growing up, that this step was taken. If they were Irish we wouldn't say a word. In fact, we have some very dear friends who are Irish, but I really find that it is a hindrance to our social standing and likewise to our business interests.

"Our social standing in Boston and surrounding cities is of the best. We have been handicapped by the name, I will admit.

"The girls, both Louise and Gladys, show their good English spirit by not minding anything that is said. Both girls are exceptionally talented. One is studying voice and the other intends to go on the stage. She is preparing to act in moving pictures.

FEEL THE PUBLICITY.

"The girls naturally feel the publicity given the matter, but they feel that everything will adjust itself all right. You can't blame the girls for not liking the name Hogan. We have all agreed that the name Homan will make a big difference in everything we undertake.

"My mother and her family are a branch of the Churchills in England. My mother, who is eighty-five years of age and still living, cannot trace Irish in her family, as far back as she has studied the genealogy."

Mrs. Mailes, Mrs. Hogan's mother, entered the room at this time. Mrs. Mailes is a woman of splendid health, straight as an arrow and of a pleasant disposition. She said:

"This publicity has not humiliated us as much as you think it might. Our real friends know the situation. The public does not. Our friends know we are English. The public think we are Irish, and are turning down an Irish name. If we were Hogans, Hogans we'd be the rest of our lives. But we are not Hogans, so we want to become Homans. It's English like ourselves. My mother's folks all came from England."

GLADYS HOGAN (at top) and her sister, Louise, two of family who want name changed to Homan.

FLOWER PETAL CHAINS.

"You will find that a society woman who has a small hand wants a very heavy pen, and it is the other way with the man," he says. "The man with a large hand wants a small pen point. We have pen points only used by laundry men and then we have steel pens which sell for $5 a dozen. These pen points are made by hand and some people will not write with any other.

"You can tell a man's temperament often by the kind of pen he uses. There are eight million gross of pen points sold in the United States every year."

ACCUSE COUPLE OF SHOOTING QUINCY BOY

Lawrence W. Lyons, clerk of Quincy District Court, issued warrants today for Mr. and Mrs. Frank Manuel of Sea street, North Weymouth, charging them with assault with a dangerous weapon on seventeen-year-old Leslie Howe of Quincy, who is now in Quincy Hospital with a bullet in his intestines.

The Quincy police, who swore out the warrants, say that they think Mrs. Manuel did the actual shooting, but they are not sure, as they secured warrants for both husband and wife.

Mrs. Manuel is a native of Panama. Manuel is a carpenter and worked last year in the Panama Canal zone. There he married, later bringing his wife north.

The shooting of young Howe was exceedingly unfil, the police say, he admitted that he and four other lads started to make a short cut across a field in North Weymouth toward a yard where field grapes were growing.

"I was about to enter the field," said Howe, "when I saw a man and woman come out of the house. The woman ran around behind the barn. A shot was heard, coming from the barn. A bullet whistled over our heads. Two more shots followed rapidly and we started to run. A fourth bullet tore the heel off Jim Kelley's shoe. The fifth bullet hit me in the."

Howe told this to his mother at the hospital. She told the police. Howe is still on the "dangerous" list. The surgeons have been unable to remove the bullet so far.

Receiver Named for Trust Hotels

Judge Dodge in the United States District Court has appointed Robert Gallagher receiver of the Associated Trust Hotels, Incorporated. The bond was fixed at $5,000. The corporation is part of the Associated Trust and operated the Hotel Lenox under a lease from the Lenox Hotel Company, which has been placed in charge of Harold Williams, Jr., as receiver by Judge Dodge. An effort will be made to save the hotel property from passing from the Associated Trust control to other parties through a foreclosure of the second mortgage by the American Trust Company.

Taft Urges Yale Men to Be Neutral

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Oct. 8.—Former President Taft urges the importance of a neutral attitude by university men, with reference to the European war in a statement written for the Yale News today:

"It seems to me everyone ought to take heed to himself and prevent William's wise injunction as to neutrality," he said. "All friends of humanity are hoping that the time will soon come when President Wilson may believe it to be opportune to renew his offers of mediation."

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Oct. 8.—Charles S. Mellen, Samuel Hemingway, Samuel C. Morehouse and Harry V. Whipple, directors of the Billard Company, who are named as co-defendants with John L. Billard and Charles F. Held for Break in South Boston

William R. Moore was arraigned in the South Boston Court today on the charge of attempting to break and enter the grocery store of Isaiah A. Clark, No. 566 East First street. Probable cause was found and Moore was bound over for a hearing before the Grand Jury in the sum of $500. The charge of cruelty to a cat against Frank Malloy was dismissed owing to the failure of witnesses to appear who were to testify for the government.

The Rubaiyat of Abos Tonfan

By BEN AMES WILLIAMS.

WAKE, Fans! The Braves, arising in their might,
Have put the Giants into helpless flight
And now prepare to meet the Men of Mack
And give those warriors one tremendous Fight.

YE Royal Rooters, then—be on the spot.
Let business and pleasure be forgot.
The boss may raise the Dickens if he will,
Or threaten direful measures. Heed him not.

UP! And to sleepy Philly come along,
And join the thousands cheering for the strong
Forget dull toil. "The Series is begun!"
Pity the dead who thrill not to the song.

A PITCHER in the box who's got the stuff,
A break of luck that's not too awful tough.
The once so mighty Mackmen on the run
And even Philly's paradise enough.

"HOW swell a glass of beer would go," say some
Or—"Oh, for that supper, waiting hot at home!"
Ah, watch the Game with me, and leave the rest,
Root! Till your throat is parched and you are dumb.

THE game that we had set our hearts upon
A dozen times, perhaps, is lost and won.
Seesawing Fortune gives us heart disease.
What matter—so we get the winning run?

THOSE stalwarts who in old days played The Game
Are gone, but these youths here are much the same.
What matter though tomorrow they're released?
Today the world is ringing with their fame.

POP Anson and his mates have had their day
And now we watch the Cobbs and Speakers play
They, too, immortal though they may be now,
Shall make their last home run—and go their way.

MANY we loved—the shrewdest and the best
That e'er a Baker at the bat outguessed—
Have pitched their last great game and like old Cy
In rustic meditation take their rest.

PLAYERS no question make of Ayes or Noes,
But hit, hunt, or play it "on your toes."
But Connie there, the solemn on the Bench
With eagle eye, he knows about it all. He knows.

THE scorer's pencil writes, and having writ,
Moves on, nor all the jealous athlete's wit
Shall lure it back to rub that "error" out.
Nor manage to record that last a "hit."

"NEVER, never again," full oft before
I swore, but was I sober when I swore?
Here now another Series came along
And my poor vow in many pieces tore.

WHAT? If a man can fling his cares aside,
And on the train to Philly take a ride,
Were't not a shame, were't not a shame for him
In Brave-less Boston, daily to abide?

AND though to go may cost me all my roll,
And though the speculators take their toll,
I offer wonder what could money buy
That I would choose before the Series goal.

BUT say—could you and I with Fate conspire
To mould things nearer to our heart's desire,
Would we not have a Series all the year
And go to every game, and never tire?

AND when I'm gone, Oh, Brother, and you see
The work-outs, and the fans in all their glee,
And James, and maybe Bender warming up,
Then Friend—remember—save a seat for me.

NIGHT ATTACKS REPULSED BY CARRANZISTAS

NACO, Ariz., Oct. 8.—After making two unsuccessful attacks on the Carranzista forces late last night, General Maytorena's Yaqui Indians were driven back to their positions at Molina early today. They suffered heavy losses in their night attacks and on their retreat many were ridden down by General Mills's cavalry.

Before the attacks by the Yaquis the Villa artillery threw shells into Naco, Sonora, demolishing a building in the centre of the town. The Villa artillery is being directed by Captain Mahlow, who has seen service in the German army. It seems to be superior to that of the Carranza forces, but for some reason is used very little. This may be due to a lack of ammunition.

During the night fighting all the American troops in this neighborhood were stationed on the border, but only a few stray bullets crossed the American line.

The Villaista artillery got into action again this morning, firing shrapnel upon the Carranza trenches. Numerous bullets fell on the American side and citizens of Naco filed a formal protest with Colonel Hatfield. They declared that unless they were given protection they would appeal to Governor Hunt to send State troops.

FAKE MEDIUMS CONDEMNED BY SPIRITUALISTS

Fake spirit mediums in Boston and elsewhere were severely condemned at today's session of the National Spiritualists' Convention in Musicians' Hall, Back Bay. Specimens of charms given by mediums were shown to the audience and hooted by them.

"See this charm," said Rev. W. J. Erwood of Philadelphia, as he held up a small bag containing charms, for which a medium has recently asked $2.00.

"Do we want these fakirs in our association?" he asked. "Has not the time come for us to put into our constitution a clause which will eliminate such fakirs. They are everywhere, they are here in Boston, destroying our good name and disgusting the cultured and intelligent. I have here in my hand a large star with nine little stars surrounding it, which a medium gave to some easy applicant as a cure for rheumatism. Now we must get rid of this nonsense. We true psychics know that we have many impostors."

John Slater of California, who said yesterday Mildred Sullivan, the missing girl of Houlton, Me., was far away from home, grew warm in his denunciation of medium fakirs and said:

"I have been in touch with hundreds of mediums, but I wanted nothing to do with those who have charge."

Rev. Thomas Grimshaw of Chicago told of mediums who got the mother confounded with the grandmother.

Mrs. M. E. Cadwallader of Chicago pleaded for the ignorant medium. "To me it does not make any difference whether the mildiums are educated or not, so long as they get the spirit messages," she said.

The motion to get rid of the unfit and undeveloped mediums passed. No one of these can now belong to the national association.

C. S. Churchill Left Money to Employes

James Brady of Dedham, for years a coal teamster, employed by the Fisher-Churchill Coal Company, today received a bequest of $1,000 from the will of the late Chauncey C. Churchill, which was filed for probate at the Norfolk County courthouse at Dedham. To Mrs. Charlotte C. Edgerly, if she is still employed at the Churchill homestead, is left $2,000. To his wife he left one-third of his real and personal property, except that part held by him for benefit of his late mother's estate. To his three children he left $10,000 each. The residue of his estate is to be held in trust for his children.

Endicott, Johnson & Co., of Boston, have cleaned up the hide market, taking about $750,000 worth of hides. This concern is now employing a thousand more men than a year ago, has the largest payroll in its history and is making its largest average output of shoes—47,000 pairs per day—over one million and a quarter per month.

This is the largest output of any shoe concern in the world, notwithstanding three of the five largest shoe manufacturers in St. Louis have consolidated within the last two or three years.

"MINUTE MEN" ATTACKED BY LT.-GOV. BARRY

SPRINGFIELD, Oct. 8.—Lieutenant-Governor Barry in addressing a shop meeting at Indian Orchard today made a bitter attack on Speaker Grafton D. Cushing, whom he charged with winning the Republican nomination for Governor through an appeal to racial hatred. Barry also criticized the motives of the so-called "Minute Men," declaring that their acts "were such as should make the late lamented Senator Hear turn in his grave."

Cushing's nomination over Colonel August H. Goetting of this city was advocated before the primaries, it was claimed, by an open letter urging Cushing's nomination because he opposed State appropriations for sectarian institutions. Twenty clergymen were among the signers of the letter which was credited to an organization known as the "Minute Men."

Lieutenant-Governor Barry said Cushing's nomination had been nurtured behind closed doors and in an un-American atmosphere.

"I think it is about time to wallop these so-called Minute Men," said Barry. "I have decided to take up the racial issue, especially as I know of no better place to begin than right here in Springfield."

CHILD KILLED TRYING TO STOP WAGON WHEEL

A three-year-old boy named George W. Vose, Jr., playing near his home on Whitney park, Dorchester, today, saw a big rubbish wagon coming along and tried to stop the wagon. It was all in play for him, but the turning wheel knocked him off his balance and passed over his head. He died almost instantly. Patrolman Joseph No. 258 Tremont street, helper on the wagon, leaped off and tried to save the child, and to old Mary Anson of No. 258 Dover street, who happened to be passing. But they were too late. The police held Milius and Antone Youngustus, who was driving the wagon. The little boy lived at No. 17 Whitney park.

MANY MOURN OVER DEATH OF MISS MANOLA

Marion Manola, the toast of Boston theatregoers of twenty-five years ago, is dead at New Rochelle, N. Y., following an operation, at the age of forty-eight.

The news of her passing away was heard with regret in this city, coupled with many recollections of the charm and vivacity that made Marion Manola one of the most popular light opera stars this country has ever produced.

The news inevitably recalled, also, the romance of Marion Manola and Jack Mason, especially since Mr. Mason is now playing in this city, where he met and married Marion Manola.

The death of the gifted light opera star revives the pretty explanation of her stage name "Manola." Her maiden name was Marion Stevens. She came from a Puritanical family of Oswego, N. Y., which married her, at the age of seventeen, to Henry S. Mould of Cleveland, partner of the late Mark Hanna. She was gifted with a beautiful lyric soprano. When reverses came upon her husband she studied for the opera stage in Paris under Marchesi. One of her girl friends in Paris had a Spanish sweetheart named Manolin. The girl became fatally ill. She asked Marion Stevens, if she ever went on the stage, to take the stage name of Manola, in memory of this girl and her Spanish sweetheart. The name means "madcap," and, on account of Marion Stevens' merry, light-hearted nature, was not considered as inappropriate.

LIGHT OPERA STAR.

With Marion in Paris were her husband and their little girl, Adelaide. The latter is now the wife of Rupert Hughes, the widely known dramatist.

Mr. Mould studied for the stage with Marion and the two appeared in England with indifferent success. They came to New York. Marion secured an engagement in "Erminie" with Francis Wilson at the New York Casino. She did so well that Colonel McCaull engaged her for "Ruddygore," "Castles in the Air," "Tar and Tartar," "The Mikado," and other light operas.

She possessed great dramatic as well as musical ability. These, with her pretty face and winsome personality, made her climb into popular favor.

She came to Boston. Her engagement at the Park Theatre in 1887 was a continuous triumph. She sang and acted her way into high favor.

Domestic trouble arose between Marion and her first husband. They were divorced in 1891. A few months later Marion married John B. Mason, or "Jack," as he was known everywhere. He was then leading man at the Boston Museum, and gaining new laurels with every fresh production.

WINNING COMBINATION.

The theatrical combination of Marion Manola and "Jack" Mason was instantly regarded as a winning one. They were particularly liked in Boston. They were "Jack" and "Marion" to thousands of Bostonians. It is doubtful if any stage couple had wider personal acquaintance in the city than these two at that time.

Marion became co-star with Mason in "Friend Fritz," "If I Were You," and other plays. In 1893 Marion fell ill. The joint work of the Mason-Manola combination was interrupted. Then domestic trouble came and "Jack" and Marion were divorced in 1900, after being married ten years.

The next year Marion entered vaudeville. She was one of the first legitimate actresses to do so. She retired from the stage three years later and married George G. Gates, now auditor of the Colonial Moving Picture Corporation of New York. They lived at New Rochelle.

One of the prettiest stories ever told of Marion was when she was singing in "Castles in the Air" at the Broadway Theatre when she was making her first successes. She was wearing tights. A photographer sprung a flashlight from a box and secured her photograph. Marion left the stage and the performance for the night closed. The photographic plate was demanded by Marion, who destroyed it, saying that she could never humiliate her little daughter by having photographs taken of herself in tights.

Auto Catches in Track; Four Hurt

William Johnson, twenty-eight, of North Woodstock, N. H., is in a dying condition at the Relief Hospital and three others are suffering injuries as a result of Johnson's automobile being caught in the car track.

Miss Josephine Gorde, twenty-five, of North Woodstock, who had come to Boston with Johnson, had her face cut by flying glass and was hurt in the right forearm. Allen Vaughan of No. 1 Orient avenue, to visit whom Johnson had made the trip, was cut above the right eye and on the right elbow, each gash necessitating three stitches. The fourth passenger in the car, Lester Stoneman of No. 10 Gladstone street, Orient Heights, escaped with a shaking up.

Doctor to Fight Suit by Aged Woman

Dr. Noble H. Hill of Brookline, who is being sued by Sophronia A. Baker, seventy-four, formerly of Wellfleet, to regain possession and control of property valued at $25,000, declares he will contest the suit in order to vindicate himself.

The woman seeks to compel the physician to assent to a cancellation of a deed of trust by which she conveyed all her estate to the Old Colony Trust Company, with the provision that the income be paid to her during her life and after her death the principal be paid to the doctor.

SAW 'PRETTIEST GIRL' ALIVE IN BANGOR SUNDAY

two must have come from Presque Isle, and on the Orono trolley line which they took on leaving here.

It was the 3 o'clock car last Sunday that the couple boarded, and it is understood the conductor of that car remembers seeing them and remembers where they left his car.

Orono and Oldtown are accordingly being ransacked for trace of the pair.

Meanwhile the search for the body of Mildred Sullivan has not been abandoned. It is one of the most amazing features of the case that there is no proof whether she is living or dead. While the authorities are searching the woods and dragging the ponds, Mildred Sullivan may easily be alive and in hiding.

PREVIOUS ARREST.

Deputy Sheriff Guion today furnished a surprise in the case. Discussing Ambrose Bridges, who has been called Briggs by many and who is regarded as the missing girl's sweetheart, Guion said he had arrested Bridges last July on the complaint of a Brownsville Junction girl, and that Bridges was under bonds in connection with that case.

Miss Mabel Estabrook, the girl who gave the authorities their newest clew in the case, lived in Houlton for two years, and is just Mildred Sullivan's age. This is her own story.

"I knew Mildred Sullivan very well. We were chums, and she often visited at my home, and I at hers. Last May, just before I came here to my uncle's, I visited her, and again when I went back to Houlton in June I saw her.

"Last Sunday afternoon just before 3 o'clock I was with my cousin, Miss Whitehead, at the corner of Exchange and Washington streets. That is a busy corner, just across from the Union station.

"We were watching people cross towards us from the station, when suddenly my eye fell on two girls, coming right toward us, and not more than twenty feet away.

IT WAS MILDRED.

"One was tall, light complexioned, and with red hair. Upon her arm she was supporting another girl, and it was on this girl my eyes fixed themselves, for it was Mildred Sullivan.

"There was no possibility of a mistake, we were too near each other.

"A moment after I saw her, Mildred seemed to feel my eyes upon her, for she looked up and saw me. I saw recognition in her face. She gave a little cry.

"And then she seemed to recover herself. She put her handkerchief up so that it hid most of her face, and turned her head away. She stooped to fumble at her skirt for a moment, then she and the other girl hurried past us.

"You see I know all about her trouble. I had read of it in the papers. And I was not surprised that she seemed to wish to avoid me. I did not try to speak to her.

"They passed us and Mildred was talking hurriedly to the girl with her. Then this girl began to look back over her shoulder, watching us to see what we would do.

"We did nothing, just stood there and tried not to seem to watch them. Then an Orono car came along, and they hurried out and boarded it. It was the 3 o'clock car.

"Mildred seemed very weak and pale. She seemed dazed. I don't believe she could have walked alone without this woman's help.

"She wore a blue suit, a black hat and black shoes and stockings. The suit seemed new."

IDA VERNON, supporting William Hodge, who tells of her experiences as Civil War nurse.

War Experiences Not New to Ida Vernon

While so many returned Americans are telling just now of their thrilling experiences in the war, there is an old-time actress playing in this city who has as stirring a story of war adventure to narrate as any of them. This is Ida Vernon, supporting William Hodge in "The Road to Happiness," at the Wilbur Theatre. During the Civil War in this country she had an experience of army arrest and imprisonment as well as blockade-running on the high seas, which was widely talked about at the time and which is still highly interesting.

Miss Vernon was in a stock company at Richmond, Va., when the Civil War broke out. She did work as a nurse and turned a schoolhouse into a little hospital of her own. She gave benefits for the soldiers. Every day with Mrs. Jefferson Davis, wife of the Confederate president, she visited the various other hospitals and was known to the wounded campaigners as "Little Sunshine."

MEN CLINGING TO STEEP ROOF BATTLE FIRE

Clinging to a sloping roof, two men fought a spectacular battle against fire in Dorchester today, and finally put out the flames though they were severely burned in the process.

The two, Joseph O'Sullivan and John J. Walch, were preparing to solder a piece of tin around the chimney on the roof of No. 24 Holmes avenue, Dorchester. The gasoline torch exploded and O'Sullivan's clothing caught.

O'Sullivan is seventeen and lives at No. 11 Speedwell street. Walch, who is thirty-four, sprang to help the younger man and to prevent hsi falling off the roof. Gripping the cornice with one hand, he tore at the other's clothing with the other and eventually ripped off the burning garments. The two were helped to the ground.

O'Sullivan was badly burned about hea dand arms, and Walch upon the hands. Both were taken to the City Hospital. Walch lives at No. 24 Hancock street.

Why Eyesight Fails

BY A SPECIALIST.

Falling eyesight is often caused by neglect and by forcing eyes to do work for which they were never intended. Our eyes are ruined by the strain modern conditions put upon them, a strain opposed to Nature and destructive to perfect sight unless relieved by proper care.

Few people know what to do when their eyes begin to go wrong; therefore, they do nothing at all until failing sight or actual agony forces them to act. Often, then, they are forced to resort to glasses for temporary relief.

A soothing, cleansing, healing, helpful lotion for eyes in trouble or those that wear glasses can be made from the following prescription:

Optona 5 grains, (One Tablet)
Water 2 ounces

Mix at home and use from two to four times a day. This prescription is in daily use by thousands. It sharpens vision, allays irritation, relieves inflammation and gives a smooth, well-lubricated feeling to the eyes. It has enabled many to discard glasses they did not really need. It has restored many to perfect eye comfort. Its use is followed by a soothing sense of relief from strain and over-use. Riker-Jaynes Stores or any other druggist can fill this prescription. Any physician familiar with the formula will tell you it is perfectly harmless.

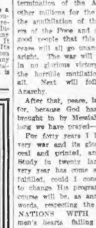
"Distress of Nations With Perplexity"

"THE TIME OF TROUBLE SUCH AS WAS NOT SINCE THERE WAS A NATION."

Conflicting Prayers Ascending to God—Prevailing Confusion of Thought Respecting Prayer—Present Conditions Prophesied Twenty-five Centuries Ago—All Nations to Be Involved—The War the Prelude to Armageddon—Lasting Peace Obtainable Only Through Messiah's Kingdom, Soon to Be Established.



Pastor Russell addressed a very intelligent audience last Sunday at the New York City Temple. His discourse was based on the text, "Upon the earth distress of nations with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring; men's hearts failing them for fear and for looking after those things that are coming upon the earth." (Luke 21:25, 26.) In part he said:

Our Honorable President with praiseworthy intent has requested all Christian people to make this a day of prayer for peace in Europe. I have been asked to sermonize accordingly. However, I cannot concur with our Worthy President in this matter. Much as I appreciate peace—and I have all my life labored to be a peacemaker—I cannot pray the Almighty to change His plans to conform to those of our Honored President.

For twenty-five hundred years God, through the Bible Prophets, has been telling His people about this great war and concerning the more terrible Armageddon which will follow it; and can we expect Him to reverse the program at our behest?

The prayers of these millions praying for the prosperity of the Germans and the extermination of the Allies, and the prayers of other millions for the success of the Allies and the annihilation of the Germans, and the prayers of the Pope and of our President and other good people that this awful war shall promptly cease will all go unanswered, if I read my Bible aright. The war will proceed and will eventuate in no glorious victory for any nation, but in the horrible mutilation and impoverishment of all. Next will follow the Armageddon of Anarchy.

After that, peace, lasting peace, may be hoped for, because God has declared it! It will be brought in by Messiah's Kingdom, for which so long we have prayed—"Thy Kingdom come!"

For forty years I have been proclaiming this very war and its glorious outcome, by sermons, oral and printed, and in my books on Bible Study in twenty languages. Now, when the very year has come and the prophecy is being fulfilled, could I consistently ask the Almighty to change His program? Nay! Rather my discourse will be, as announced, from the Master's words, respecting the present "DISTRESS OF NATIONS WITH PERPLEXITY. * * * men's hearts failing them for fear of those things about to come on the earth."

GOD'S PART IN THE PRESENT WAR

Doubtless many will be shocked with my declaration that this war and the resulting greater calamity are of Divine permission and arrangement, clearly prophesied in Scripture. The gathering of the nations to the present struggle is referred to in the prophecy of Joel, where the weak nations are called upon to assert their strength and where all of them are commanded to go down to the Valley of Jehoshaphat—the Valley of Graves—the cemetery outside of the city of Jerusalem being used by the Prophet in illustration of the terrible slaughter now going on.

Surely this war has brought more to the grave than has any previous war; and it is only beginning. For years the nations, in harmony with Joel's prophecy, have been "beating their plowshares into swords, and their pruning-hooks into spears," in the sense that they have been spending for military purposes money which should properly have been spent in agricultural implements and developments.

Apparently all the nations will yet be involved. Happy would it be if our own land shall escape! Our President and our Secretary of State are men of peace and will surely do all in their power to avoid complications and war itself. Nevertheless, the great nations of Europe, realizing how much they will be weakened by this war, will do all in their power to ensnare these United States, lest at the conclusion of the war we should tower above the others financially and otherwise.

WHY GOD HAS PERMITTED SIN AND DEATH.

Only as we look at the Divine Plan as a whole can we understand God's relationship with this bloody war—and with all war. To the majority it is confusing to think that God would bring about any war. There is surely something wrong or there would not be such perplexity, for the Lord tells His people concerning this Time of Trouble that they "need not be in darkness that that day should overtake them unawares." God's people should have general information regarding His plans and arrangements.

Many have seen only small portions of the Divine Plan, and so have failed to grasp the great lengths, breadths, heights and depths of God's great Purpose. But whoever has an understanding of the great Plan of God will ever after be able rightly to appreciate and to locate not only the events of today, but also everything that is coming; for the Bible outlines the history of man.

The Scriptures clearly teach that our earth is the only rebellious province in all God's fair creation. In this little planet God has permitted sin to take its course—to bud, to blossom, to bring forth its fruitage—that both men and angels may see the dire results of opposition to the Divine Government.

The Bible tells us how this world became rebellious. It tells us that God did not create mankind imperfect, as we are today. Man was created perfect, an earthly being—in the image of his Heavenly Creator, in the sense of having a moral character, but limited to earthly conditions. This perfect man was placed in a perfect home, in every way adapted to his needs. This Eden was especially prepared for him and he was to [illegible] it. He was the king of the whole earth, and therefore his Creator instructed him that as his family increased, he was to subdue the earth and develop it. Had mankind remained in harmony with God, the whole world would have become as Eden.

God foreknew what would occur, however. He foresaw Adam's sin and fall, as well as the mental, moral and physical degeneracy which would result from the disobedience of our first parents. He foreknew our weakness and imperfection, our attempts at moral, religious and mental reform and at mental and physical health. Yet He permitted all this to come to pass. Sin entered the world, and has continued to rest upon the human family for six thousand years.

God's penalty upon man is death, and it matters not whether that death come through war or pestilence or famine or by slower processes. Meantime, God would use all of man's experiences of the past six thousand years as a great lesson on the exceeding sinfulness of sin and on the utter hopelessness of any other help than that which God Himself has provided.

From the creation of Adam until now has been a period of Six Thousand-year-Days—man's Work Week—during which he has been permitted to try everything he could imagine for his own relief from sin and its penalty of death. After these sixty centuries humanity is still dying—mentally, morally and physically. Our only hope is in God; and He has arranged that His blessing shall come through Messiah's Kingdom, when we shall have reached our extremity. Man's extremity will be God's opportunity.

So far from gaining life everlasting for our race, all our efforts have accomplished nothing. Our most learned physicians and specialists declare that the world is on the verge of collapse; and that at the present rate of increase there would not, in one hundred and sixty years, be enough sane people in the world to care for the insane. They tell us that various diseases are increasing so rapidly as to endanger the race in a very short time; and that this is true notwithstanding the fact that sanitary conditions are made necessary, even to the extent of individual drinking cups.

Our only hope lies in the great Seventh Day, the antitypical Sabbath. In it Messiah, associating with Himself the saintly ones of this Gospel Age, will set up the Divine Kingdom amongst men—a spiritual Kingdom, not an earthly one, but ruling amongst mankind, blessing and uplifting them. For a thousand years the work of uplift will progress, until all the willing and obedient will have attained again the lost likeness of their Creator; and the whole earth will be their Paradise.

"TIMES OF THE GENTILES."

Amongst other lessons which God has been teaching mankind is the fact that they are incapable of establishing a government such as is necessary for the real blessing and uplift of the race. God appointed Israel after the flesh to be His typical Kingdom for a time, and selected King David and his posterity to be rulers. By and by He cut these off, discontinuing the earthly typical Kingdom.

The last monarch of David's line was King Zedekiah, of whom we read: "O thou profane and wicked Prince, whose time has come that iniquity shall have an end. Remove the diadem, take off the crown. * * * I will overturn, overturn, overturn it until He comes whose right it is, and I will give it to Him." (Ezekiel 21:25-27.) Messiah is the One whose right it is—Jesus the Head, the Church His Body—on the spirit plane.

Certain Scriptures indicate that the period during which God's Kingdom would be removed would be seven Prophetic Times, each 360 years long. Seven Times would therefore equal 2,520 years. Reckoned from the time of King Zedekiah, that period ends this year; for, according to the Scriptures, King Zedekiah's crown was taken away in 606 B. C. If so, with the close of the present year, Messiah should take to Himself His great power and begin His glorious Reign of a thousand years, the beginning of which, according to the Bible, will be a very dark hour—"a Time of Trouble such as was not since there was a nation," "no, nor ever shall be" the like again.—Daniel 12:1; Matthew 24:21.

When God removed His typical Kingdom, 606 B. C., He gave to the Gentiles authority or permission to do their best in governing the world and bringing in righteousness and happiness. That we might know all this, He gave a dream to Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon, and sent the interpretation of that dream through the Prophet Daniel. The dream showed a great image, whose head was of gold, representing Babylon; its breast and arms of silver, representing the succeeding government of the Medes and Persians; the belly of brass, representing the Grecian Empire, which followed the Medo-Persian; and its legs of iron, representing Rome, the government of the Caesars. Each of these governments has had universal sway, each has shown the best it could do for humanity, and each has failed.

Next came the feet of the image, which were of iron smeared with clay, thus made to resemble stone feet. These iron feet represented the Holy Roman Empire, which was really a part of the Roman Empire, and the divisions of which are at war with each other today. The dream and its interpretation showed that a stone cut without hands struck the image in its feet, ground them to powder and utterly destroyed the entire image. This stone represented Messiah's Kingdom, which will ultimately fill the whole earth, according to this prophecy.

The clay smeared on the iron feet, making them look like the stone, represents the fact that the present Roman governments of Europe claim to be Christ's Kingdom. On their coins, and otherwise, they claim to represent God. They have been deceived into thinking and speaking of themselves as Christendom, which signifies Christ's Kingdom. In reality they are the last representatives of Gentile power—"kingdoms of this world"—the toes of the image of Gentile supremacy of which King Nebuchadnezzar dreamed.

The present war will weaken the nations, draining not only their life blood, but also their wealth; and it will demonstrate the inefficiency of all Gentile kingdoms to bring to the world peace, righteousness, satisfactory government. But Messiah's Kingdom, which will then be inaugurated, will be "the desire of all nations."

THE PROPHETIC FORECAST.

This war and the anarchy of Armageddon, which will follow it, will prove conclusively the need of Divine interposition in human affairs. As Jesus said, speaking of the present trouble and the resulting anarchy, "Unless those days shall be shortened, there would be no flesh saved." So virulent, so selfish, would that strife be that our civilization would perish, did not God through Messiah's Kingdom, the Elect, intervene to bring order out of chaos.

Doubtless earth's great rulers have done the best they knew how to do for their peoples. Some of our very best laws came from Julius Caesar, in combination with the Mosaic code. Some of the world's rulers today are also doing their best; but they are confused. Having a false idea of what constitutes Christ's Kingdom, they seem to think it their mission to conquer the world. They also believe that they foresee a general uprising of Socialism, and their hearts are failing them, fearing the things coming upon the earth.

While they knew that this would be the worst war ever known, yet they preferred it to that which they were striving to ward off and which they have succeeded in keeping off for the present. But they have lost their best blood, their best energy, their money, commerce, etc.; and when the war is ended, these nations, sorrowful and famine stricken, will be greatly angered at their rulers. Then will come the determination for something like Socialism. This the Governments will endeavor to put down, and to some extent they will succeed. Then will come the great explosion—the Armageddon of the Scriptures. Then will be the Time of trouble, immediately preceding the Messianic Kingdom.

By a mistranslation which has confused us all, the Bible styles this trouble the end of the world. Strictly speaking, it is the end of the present Age, or order of things, to be followed by a new order, "the world to come, wherein dwelleth righteousness"—"a new heaven," the Church in glory, and "a new earth," a new social order—the world in accord with the Divine Law. It is also styled a whirlwind, a tidal wave, and a consuming fire—all forceful symbols. Misunderstanding these symbols, our creeds declare that the world is to be burned up. The real thought is the ending of this Age in a symbolic fire of trouble, inaugurating a New Dispensation—Messiah's Kingdom, which will establish the long promised "Peace on Earth!"

The forecast of the present Distress of Nations is graphically set forth in the volume

Thoughts are Sparks

—flashes of the mind that decide for success or failure.

The question is, what kind of sparks does your brain generate?

The brain, like a battery, must be supplied with certain elements to generate thought properly. These brain elements are water, albumen and phosphate of potash. If any of these are lacking in the daily food, brain and body energy are vitally lessened.

Are any lacking? Listen! Water and albumen are plentifully supplied in ordinary food, but phosphate of potash—together with other mineral elements—is almost wholly lacking in white bread and all white flour products.

CROSS FEARS GIL GALLANT IN ARENA GO

By JACK CONWAY.

GILBERT GALLANT, Chelsea's aggressive lightweight, has already started to prepare himself for his twelve-round skirmish with Leach Cross of New York which will be staged at the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night. It is the biggest lightweight tussle which has been arranged for Boston "fans" for a long time and a capacity house is certain to witness the encounter.

Gallant and Cross should put up a slashing fight as both men are hard punchers and delight in exchanging punches with an opponent at close quarters. If Gallant should win from the Gotham favorite he would be in line to land matches with the world's leading lightweights.

CROSS realizes that he will have to be at his best if he is to win from Gallant. A friend of the writer recently met Cross in New York and in discussing his coming whirl with Gallant, the dentist said:

"I cannot afford to take any chances with Gallant as he is a strong, ambitious boxer with a smashing left-hand punch. He is also able to hit hard with his right hand. I am well acquainted with the Chelsea boy's aggressive style of fighting as I saw him in his two battles with 'Red' Watson in California. The first tussle was called a draw, but Gallant had a big margin on his opponent during the first fourteen rounds. Watson, however, flashed in the last six rounds and won the good graces of the referee.

"GALLANT lost on a foul to Watson in their second bout, but he had the best of the fighting until he landed the low blow which lost him the decision. Believe me when I say that Watson is a real fighter I know whereof I speak as I did all I could do to beat him in two twenty-round battles. It is tough young fighters like Gallant who usually 'get the dope' and conquer a veteran like myself. That's why I intend to tie for put up the battle of my life when I enter the ring at the Atlas Club next Tuesday evening."

IT is but seldom that a real classy boxer experienced difficulty in securing attractive matches. Such, however, is the fate of Fred Yelle, the rugged Rhode Island lightweight. Yelle has proved that he is the equal of any 135-135-pound glove wielder in New England, but yet is going begging for matches.

Eddie Moore, Yelle's manager, posted $200 with the writer several weeks ago to bind a title battle with Baldwin. Moore stated that he would increase the sum to $500 when the original amount was covered by the Charlestown lightweight. The Pawtucket man was anxious to have the $500 go on record.

The Baldwin camp, however, remained silent. They could not very well declare that a match with Yelle would not be a profitable one as two New England clubs were willing to stage the tussle while if Matty won he would win an additional $500 provided he covered Moore's money.

MOORE believes that the side bet proposition scared the local boxers, and he says that he will remove this obstacle. Eddie is confident that his protege would be able to dispose of Baldwin, Murphy or Gilbert Gallant.

Johnny "Young" Lustig, the New York lightweight, who held Baldwin to a draw at Manchester, N. H., and who gave Eddie Murphy such a rugged battle at the Atlas A. A., is willing to meet Yelle, and there is a chance that these two boys will be signed to exchange punches at one of the local clubs.

It is no more than right that a young, ambitious New England boxer like Yelle should be given a preference at the local clubs over battle scarred veterans who hail from other parts.

BEATTY'S MEN LEAD BOWLERS IN CITY LEAGUE

By J. P. MURPHY.

Chauncey moved into the lead in the City Bowling League by taking four points from Carruth in the second round of the season. The aim of the Beatty quintet to get a strangle hold on first place was not successful, however, as Boylston got the better of three of its four strings with Casino and pulled up within a point of the leaders. Here is how they stand:

	W.	L.
Chauncy	7	1
Boylston	6	2

The results of these two matches left open for discussion the relative merits of Chauncy and Boylston, which may be decided for the present when they meet on next Wednesday night.

One point is evident, however, i. e., it's going to take a pretty high scoring and smoothly working combination to oust the present leaders. Archie Welsh, Terry Griffin, Jack Taylor, Harry Howard and Paul Pechler, who make up the Chauncy team, are very formidable in every bowling fan's way of thinking.

Carruth, led by the shrewd Dick Rouse and anchored by Christopher, gave Chauncy a pretty close tussle last night, but several individual slumps on the part of the Hanover street bowlers let Beatty's aggregation under the wire safe.

Carruth made a great attempt to pull out the last string, but Poehler knocked their aspirations into a cocked hat with a spare in his last box. Poehler showed his usual consistency, bowling down the maple for strings of 111, 115 and 116. Thornton led the visiting bowlers with a single of 120 and a total of 320.

A tournament, similar in every detail to the one at Dewey square, is being conducted at the Arch street lanes. Bullinger, who at one time led all three divisions, is now leader in the four non-consecutive only. He has a score of 234. Bo Hartford is next best, with 232, while Gearin is third, with 230. Gearin also has the best four consecutive strings of 311. Hardy turned in 99, the star single.

HARVARD IS BADLY CRIPPLED FOR BIG GAME AGAINST W. & J.

By TED PARKE.

With the Washington and Jefferson game but two days away and the Crimson Cripples Row assuming what might readily be called terrifying proportions with the loss of Mahan, Logan and possibly Soucy from the lineup Saturday, the brains of the Harvard coaches are indeed being racked for some solution of the apparently unsolvable problem which confronts them in putting a team on the field which will be able successfully to withstand the assaults of the invaders.

Harvard tackled a pretty stiff proposition in its schedule this year, which is easily the hardest ever put up to a Crimson team, and on the other hand seldom has this season of the year found the Crimson so badly crippled.

To be sure the loss of Mahan in the backfield is somewhat softened by the substitution of Hardwick, yanked out of the end position for this purpose. But Logan has handled the eleven so long and knows so well just what he can expect of each man, that the best is not apt to be gotten out of the eleven under any one else's guidance.

WATSON TO PLAY QUARTER.

Watson will in all probability have the call for the quarterback position against Washington and Jefferson, and at best he is a poor quarter. Handling a badly crippled team then will be no easy task for a man who is by no means an all-star, an eleven which is intact in every respect and feels its strength because of the knowledge that it is a unit.

The Harvard line has not been anything remarkable this year even when playing with the best men in the ranks. The players have charged high and slow.

They have utterly disregarded the most commonplace rules of line play, which dictate that the men should work together, and instead have played individual games entirely and not very good ones at that.

Now, to cap the climax, comes the cheering information that Mr. Cowen, who was looked upon as a good man to bolster up the Harvard line at left guard, has gone and done it at the college office, or rather not done it, meaning he has flunked his orals and will not be eligible this year.

MANY HOLES IN THE LINE.

Soucy, the centre, a fast man on the charge, a sure passer at all times and one of the bulwarks of the Crimson defence, is on the sick list with an injured knee received in scrimmage, and his place will have to be filled Saturday by Bigelow, or possibly even Wallace.

All in all the Harvard line now begins to resemble a worn-out sieve, which is not generally looked upon as the best protection for such a sacred thing as the Crimson goal.

The shifting of Hardwick to the backfield, where he knows every inch of the ground, naturally weakens the end of the line somewhat, for Weatherhead is certainly not his equal as a end rush.

Hardwick is not quite the punter that Mahan is developing into, but he can be depended upon to acquit himself creditably when called upon to do so in the kicking line.

One of the bright features of the week's work thus far has been the remarkable drop kicking by Captain Bigelow. His drop kick from the 45-yard line for a perfect score is indeed a source of encouragement to Crimson rooters, and this alone should make Harvard feel some sense of security.

The weakness in the line, demonstrated earlier in the season in receiving between the tackles, is only accentuated by the loss of Soucy. At the present time the only men of real varsity calibre from tackle to tackle are Pennock, an All-American guard, and Trumbull, his teammate last year.

Bigelow at centre, Weston at guard and Morgan at tackle are the best at hand and must be made the most of.

Coach Haughton will have to rearrange his defence for the game Saturday and bolster up the line in withstanding the assaults of the Washington and Jefferson siege guns.

NEWS FROM THE COLLEGE GRIDIRONS

NEW HAVEN.—Following the directions defensive coach Frank Hinkey has given the varsity eleven this week, the scrubs piled into the varsity time after time in the practice game. In the course of the scrimmage, Von Holt, quarterback on the scrub team, broke his left wrist and will not be able to play for a week. Hall was also hurt and has been suffering with battered knees, was on the field for a while, but did not take any part in the game.

* * *

HANOVER, N. H.—Dartmouth's toll of injured increased to nine as a result of the great Williams Saturday with Coach Hollenback's team. Ned Hall, Nash, Nichols, Lovejoy and Wheeler were hurt during the Williams game. The damage to McAuliffe's ankle was more serious than at first thought and will keep him out of the game with Brown on Saturday. Coach Eltz was pleased with the improvement of the defensive work of the first-string men. Rider, Warren, Kennedy and Adler were hard hurled at the middle of the 1918 line, and they repeatedly tore up the line for gains. Whitney, injured his knee last week, is still out of the game, but Knowlton was shifted into his place at tackle and showed up well.

* * *

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—In secret practice at Franklin Field, Coach Crooke tried a new defensive formation. The scrub back field showed a great improvement over any set tried, and the varsity backfield men, Dan Le Boutillier, Porter remained at full-back, Mellet, who has been out with a broken nose, at left half and Captain Bill Scott at right half, were not able to run through the whole attack. Dan Le Boutillier has been suffering with a bad knee, but made gains for his side. The forward line was used with the scrub backfield men behind the varsity scrimmage. About 50 per cent. of the plays were directed around the left end of the line, the consisting of Norvald from tackle to centre, Rorin from centre to tackle, Kinkead from tackle to end. Saturday, but is not up to varsity form. Medford, Mayo, Heald and Hoaring were used in the former positions.

* * *

ANNAPOLIS, Oct. 8.—The efforts of the Naval Academy coaches to develop a defense for the game with Pennsylvania on Saturday, when Coach Dietz, the old Yale player, will send his field goal kicking team against the Navy goal, were present and with Lieutenant Logan Scruggs acting as quarterback, the Navy varsity eleven was made, as during part of the afternoon's practice it was the scrub team that was drilled in stopping plays directed at it. In the scrub backfield were Ellis, Hall, Hamilton and Wilson, candidates. Dalton taking charge of the punting. Among the men added to the squad yesterday was Bridgett, showing good form in this line.

* * *

EASTON, Pa., Oct. 8.—Coach Cowell has had Lafayette working on the defense for a big game with Pennsylvania on Saturday, but only a light practice was held. Cowell attended the games Lafayette played here this afternoon, and says that they have obtained some idea of Lafayette's signal play. According to Cowell there are no new set in being, but the Easton men are improving. Bridgett is showing good form in this line.

School Notes

The Melrose High football team bids fair to make the same kind of a reputation as did Princeton several years ago when Sammy White piled up several touchdowns and made long runs, winning important games. The Melrose team follows the ball perfectly and have made several touchdowns this year as a result. Melrose won the championship game by intercepting a forward pass and yesterday Hall scored two touchdowns on similar plays.

* * *

The followers of Malden High received a setback yesterday when the latter was defeated by Wellesley High by the score of 10 to 7. Malden outplayed Wellesley, but Coach Hollenback's team has been making a wonderful brand of football. Malden's goal was gained by line plunging and a goal from field won for Wellesley.

* * *

Another surprise was sprung yesterday when the Alden A. A. defeated the High School of Commerce eleven 13 to 0. The Allen School players took full advantage of the many fumbles by their opponents and both touchdowns by the same method after a fumbled ball had been picked up.

Joe Thomas F. Harrington of the Boston High football team is the latest addition to the long list of athletes in the football game of the Boston high schools. Henry Brett, Jack Burke, Henry D. Cotton, Richard D. Sullivan, Edward Cummings, Charles F. Donnelley, Jack P. Gilhooly, John Mahlbrand, Lincoln McGrath, Joseph F. Mooney, Charles O'Brien, Frank Sullivan, John J. O'Donnell, Frederick L. Overgren, Joseph M. Reading, George Sullivan, Harold Tingle.

Wunderlich, the star cross-country runner, formerly of Arlington High, is a candidate for the Boston College High eleven. He is playing at left end on the 2nd form. The Arlington boy has been showing up fairly well in the practice games and is sure of a place on the team.

* * *

Coach Hollenback of the Malden Trinity football team will begin work today in the hope of putting a team on the field which will defeat Brookline High. Brookline and Wellesley have both been beaten by this athletic club, which is considered one of the biggest of the season.

* * *

The game between Malden High and Melrose High to be played on Columbus Day is attracting considerable attention. For the first time in many years Melrose High is represented by a football team that will make them go some.

* * *

Milton High and Milton Academy will clash in their annual gridiron contest Monday, on Fenway Park, which promises to be a hotly contested affair.

* * *

The Somerville High team must show considerable improvement over last week's game if it is to come out successfully with the Classical Latin team in the holiday game. Somerville High has been defeated and tied twice by teams in the hands of Melrose. Coach Dave Morey has been putting his men hard in practice this week with the hope of developing a winning combination.

Sidelights on Sports

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

EVERYTHING is now set as well as it can be set, for the World's Series. There will be no more accidents to players, unless someone is injured in practice before the first game starts.

* * *

THE extra seats at Fenway Park are all up. There are long rows of seats along Duffy's cliff in left field. Another section of new seats extends from the corner of the centre field bleachers around to near the right field foul line. There is a third section—a small one—back of third base, just beyond the boxes and in front of the covered pavilion.

* * *

ALTOGETHER Fenway Park looks much as it did in the 1912 World's Series between the Giants and the Red Sox. The chances are there will be many "two-baggers" batted into the left field seats. Of the Braves, Gowdy, Deal, Evers, Schmidt, Cather, Maranville and Whaling stand an excellent chance of putting the ball into these seats any time they come to bat. The same is true in this direction usually. As for right field, hitters such as Connolly, it will be no great feat for him to drive the ball into the seats in front of the bleachers—at least the ball may get there on the bound.

* * *

AS to what J. FRANKLIN Baker of the Athletics, will do to that new right field section, we prefer to close our eyes and trust to Providence.

* * *

Also Stuffy McInnis and Collins may find Duffy's Cliff very handy. However, let us draw a veil on what the Athletics may do with their swat-sticks.

* * *

YOU can't tell much about the betting odds as recorded from time to time. It all depends on who you are betting with. If with a friend the published odds are all right to go on. But if you are betting with the professional element you will find that this gentry wants all there is in sight. The odds are with which ever way you want to place your money. The best you can get is the worst of it.

* * *

THE members of the Red Sox brigade broke camp immediately after yesterday's game, which closed the American League season at Fenway Park. Most of the players were all packed up and left at once for their respective homes.

* * *

Joe Wood will remain here until the Boston end of the World's Series is finished, and then he will motor to his home at Parkers Glen, Pa.

* * *

Tris Speaker is going to Philadelphia for the opening of the big series and will return here for the Boston games. At the close of the series he will drive his automobile to his home in Hubbard City, Texas, journeying by way of Chicago.

* * *

* * *

* * *

THE final game at Fenway Park was a farce comedy. The pitchers lobbed 'em over and hits for extra bases were frequent. Cady went to bat wearing shin guards and chest protector, and first time up slammed out a double.

Indianapolis Wins Federal Pennant

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 8.—The Indianapolis Federal League team for the second time in two years has captured the Federal League pennant.

To Manager "Whoa Bill" Phillips, the "silent leader" of the team, who also was at the helm of the club last year when it won the first flag of the league, is given credit, in a large measure, for the winning of the second championship.

He, however, ascribes the victory to his players. The feature of the local team's work this season was its strong attack.

Reich and Coffey Win New York Bouts

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Al Reich, former middleweight champion, heavyweight champion defeated Tom Kennedy of New York in a ten-round bout here. Jim Coffey of the Dublin Giant, and Terry Keller, a California heavyweight, met in the same ring, the referee stopping the bout in the ninth round to save Keller from a knockout.

An Easy Way to Get Fat and Be Strong

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they put it on digesting their stomach or stuffing it with greasy foods; rubbing on useless "fat creams," or following some foolish physical culture stunt, while the real cause of thinness goes untouched, so cannot get fat until your digestive tract assimilates the food you eat.

Thanks to a remarkable new scientific discovery, it is now possible to combine into simple form the very elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into fat-laden blood. This masterstroke of modern chemistry is called Sargol and has been termed the greatest of flesh-building aids. Sargol aims through its re-generative, re-constructive powers to coax the stomach and intestines to literally soak up the fattening elements of your food and pass them into the blood, where they are carried to every starved, broken-down cell and tissue of your body. You can readily picture the result when this amazing transformation has taken place and you notice how your cheeks fill out, hollows about your neck, shoulders and bust disappear and you take on from 5 to 25 pounds of solid, healthy flesh. Sargol is absolutely harmless, inexpensive, efficient. Your druggist has it and will refund your money if you are not satisfied, as per the guarantee found in every package.

Caution—While Sargol has given excellent results in overcoming nervous dyspepsia and general stomach troubles, it should not be taken by those who do not wish to gain ten pounds or more.

COBB SAYS BRAVES HAVE AN ADVANTAGE IN THEIR PITCHERS

(By TY COBB.)

Written Expressly for the Boston American.

TY COBB.

James was the star of the Boston pitching staff this season and he was largely responsible for the ultimate success of Stallings' club by his sterling work in the box.

Of course, I have never faced James on the firing line, but National Leaguers tell that one of his greatest assets is a fast ball which carries a good hop.

"Bill" James was a kid in San Francisco when "Rube" Vickers was pitching for the San Francisco team out there. He used to get into the park by carrying Vickers' bat for him. Vickers has had his day and is in the minors now, while James is at the top.

The two pitchers met in New York recently, and Vickers was warm in his praise of the youngster who had become a Big League star. Then he whispered a word of advice into James' ear.

TELLS HIM NOT TO USE HIS FAST BALL.

"Remember what I am going to tell you, boy," said Vickers. "Don't give those Athletics a look at your fast one."

"I don't know," replied James. "I've got a pretty good fast ball, and they don't hit it much in this league."

"Never mind what they do in your league," Vickers answered. "I know those Athletics. Not a man will wait you out except the first one to face you in their batting order, 'Eddie' Murphy. After [illegible] they will all be taking their wallop at the first ball. Eh? By Bro. They will have five runs over on you before you get a chance to turn around if you don't keep [illegible] way from the fast one. Stick it in your pocket and forget it, or they'll [illegible] the concrete wall for you."

"I don't know, 'Rube,'" persisted James. "That fast ball of mine is a pretty good one."

THEY DON'T LIKE A "SPITTER."

"You pitch a spitter and you control it good, don't you?" asked Vickers. "Well, give them that. They can't hit a spitter [illegible] But if you are going to feed them fast ones, keep them low [illegible]. Don't hang them where they can get hold of one, because they'll [illegible] pole it."

Vickers' advice to the [illegible] star of Stallings' staff [illegible]. The Athletics [illegible] a spitter or a slow [illegible] you [illegible] weak against [illegible].

Dubuc [illegible] the Detroit club [illegible] them look like suckers [illegible] right.

For this reason, I think that Stallings' staff has a little edge on Mack's in the coming series.

James is [illegible] the staff [illegible] for effect [illegible] a good deal [illegible] because [illegible]. They tell me [illegible] spitter is [illegible] good control [illegible]. The Athletics never hit "Ed" Walsh's spitter much when he was right.

RUDOLPH SHOULD MAKE GOOD.

Rudolph is a slow ball pitcher. If he tried to depend on speed alone they would beat him 20 to 1 every start. But he is smart and a master of the slow one. He ought to be tough for the Athletics.

James has the natural build for a pitcher; he is over six feet tall and is built professionally, with all the strength of youth. As I have said, he has used his fast ball a good deal in the National League but Stallings is smart enough to warn him against it in the series, for he knows the Athletics.

Tyler will also make trouble for the Athletics' style of hitters. Both Baker and Collins swing left handed, and they are never as strong against a southpaw.

Bender, Plank and Bush, if Mack uses Bush, are fast ball pitchers largely. The Giants have been looking bad in front of speed for several seasons in the World's Series.

"Joe" Wood could pop [illegible] through there with speed and a little jump on it and make the New York hitters throw away [illegible]. Plank and Bender did the same thing.

But Stallings tells me that he has some batters who find the fast [illegible] to be cherry pie for them. Deal, Schmidt, Gowdy, Connolly [illegible] and some more can hit best [illegible] old fast ball.

BRAVES HAVE YOUTH.

The Boston staff has the edge when it comes to age. For his main supports, Mack will have to depend on Plank and Bender, two veterans of years' standing. Each will deliver one bang up game [illegible] if none of Mack's younger pitchers is [illegible] to stand off the Braves and [illegible] is forced to come back quickly with either Plank or Bender the veterans will find the going tough.

Each one of these pitchers needs his rest. Rudolph, James and Tyler can all come back after one day's rest, so Stallings tells me.

I would not be surprised to see the Athletics get away with the first two games, since both Bender and Plank will be primed for them, and they will be on the home grounds of the Athletics.

You can count on each pitcher for a wonderful game. But if Philadelphia does grab the first two games, don't think that that will settle the series.

STALLINGS' PLANS SECRET.

Of course, I don't know anything about George Stallings' plans. In fact, he is the kind of man who would not tell his own brother what he intends to do and he probably won't make up his mind who he will work in the first game until the day before. But I have a hunch that it will be "Dick" Rudolph.

That first battle of the World's Series is always the most trying of all. The teams have not become used to the excited crowds and the superstitious [illegible]. It is all new to [illegible] if they have been in a World's Series before. It takes a steady pitcher to work that first game.

I thought that McGraw made a mistake to start Tesreau in the [illegible] in 1912, and Marquard fast [illegible]. The year he led with Matty he got away with the first game and [illegible] to come back again [illegible]. The crowds and the excitement did not bother the old fellow. He was [illegible] pitching.

I [illegible] to criticize McGraw [illegible] I know [illegible] I am only a second guesser in this, and the second guesser always has about 100 per cent the best of it.

RUDOLPH COOL AS ICE.

Rudolph is the veteran pitcher on the Stallings staff. He is as cool as ice and knows what he is doing on every [illegible] before he lets go of it. [illegible] the best pitcher in the National League [illegible] this year. The Athletics [illegible] looking [illegible] our league [illegible] to slow [illegible] right better [illegible].

Stallings, however, may use James to open. He is a big, hearty boy, only twenty-two years old and with all the nerve in the world. But if he should get away bad on the first day it might hurt his work in the rest of the series and if the battle runs into six or seven games Boston may have to depend upon him to come back often.

One way to get used to things before working will do James a world of good [illegible].

Both teams should go into the series in tip-top shape, for each manager has had plenty of chance to prepare for it and rest up his men. Boston will be more of an uncertain proposition than the Athletics.

The Braves clinched the pennant by a long fight and going at top speed. After being sure of the championship, the team naturally let down. In fact, Stallings took the brake off the night the pennant fight was finally decided and [illegible] players to go out and forget [illegible].

It is one of the strictest managers in the Big Leagues when it comes to training. With his club on the road, he insists on every man showing up at the hotel by 11 at night. But he knew [illegible] after the long strain, a little relaxation would do [illegible] good.

CONFIDENCE IN STALLINGS.

There is always the danger of a team "breaking" when it has a chance to let down for a week or ten days after traveling at top speed for a long while. On the other hand, the Athletics have just been loafing along for a month or so gradually gathering momentum for the series. But I believe Stallings will hold his club at its best, and that both teams will enter the battle in prime shape. There is, of course, some chance of Boston "breaking" row, but nobody will be able to tell this until the series is on.

Mack has had some of his lieutenants looking over the Braves, picking up a line on their style of play. Baker, Collins and Harry Davis have all seen Boston play within the last week. Stallings has not had any scouts out as far as I know.

From this article some might gather that I am favoring the Braves. As I said in my previous article, the Athletics are my choice, but Boston has a chance and a fair one. I have tried to show that the Boston pitching staff compares very favorably with Mack's [illegible], if anything, has a little edge.

In my next article I will try to show how the players compare [illegible] in this department the results [illegible] favor the Athletics. I will also compare the two managers as I know them from seeing them both in the American League.

'Fed' Champions Issue Challenge for Title Games

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 8.—The Indianapolis Federal League champions, two-time winners of the league race, are out with a challenge for the world's championship.

They are willing to play the winner of the Braves-Athletics games a series to decide the title. If the challenge is not accepted which is practically a certainty, they will declare themselves the rightful champions as the winner in the third big league.

The baseball bugs here figure that in a series with either the Braves or Athletics the Hoosiers would go to the post at a short price, but, nevertheless, figure that in a short series the best team does not always win.

Out Ten Minutes but Won Star Race

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Thomas Wright, a crack jockey of Baltimore, established a new record at the [illegible] matinee.

[illegible] the Piping Rock cup event, a handicap steeplechase, his horse fell and Wright was unconscious for ten minutes. He was revived and then rode [illegible] home the winner.

In the long history of the turf there is no record of a similar feat. The other horses in the race either fell or bolted [illegible] had only two jumps more to go, after being patched up, finished the race alone.

MACK REFUSES TO LET BRAVES PRACTICE ON ATHLETICS' PARK

By NICK FLATLEY.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 8.—There is a frenzy rivalry between the Braves and the Athletics, when the two champion outfits get into the World's Series tomorrow.

It's war to the knife and no mistake. The refusal of the Athletic [illegible] to let the Braves use Shibe Park for practice has cut off what little chance there was of any good feeling with the Braves all [illegible] the way the Macks acted [illegible] a few months ago, there was never a great deal of love lost between the two teams.

Manager Stallings this morning [illegible] condemnation of his [illegible]. He would not say [illegible] palliation except to [illegible] action on the part [illegible] all the hotter for [illegible].

[illegible] met Connie last [illegible] for the use of the [illegible]. The Braves have never played [illegible] of tomorrow's [illegible] naturally their [illegible] to let his stars [illegible] get used to conditions [illegible] would be when play [illegible].

BRAVES ARE ALL MAD.

It's mighty hard to see where the leader of the American champions is at all justified in his refusal. It certainly savors of poor sportsmanship. Which is what all the Braves think of the matter.

One of [illegible] expressed the sentiments of the crowd tersely. "The Athletics [illegible] crowd of sports [illegible] on Shibe Park in [illegible] this year so of course [illegible] this afternoon to get used to [illegible] it will help us along. Evers [illegible] enough about the [illegible] Smith, but this has the whole crowd crazy.

"We never were a hand shaking crowd anyhow and take it from us there will be some fireworks tomorrow and the next three or four days."

Stallings was so indignant that he [illegible] the morning [illegible] last practice of the Braves will be held this afternoon at the Phillies Park, where yesterday's long workout was staged.

SECRET PRACTICE TODAY.

It will be behind closed gates and the new signals which will be used by the Braves in the series will be worked out thoroughly.

All the star pitchers will have their final tuning up and the great infield, which with Deal in, looks faster than the old, will get the last touch of polish, as you might say.

There's also a mighty roar hereabouts, by all persons connected with baseball regarding the way tickets have been handed out. Though there were evidently enough left over to have a public sale of 6,000 yesterday, no member of the Boston team, not even the manager has received a single pasteboard.

The Philadelphia National players who put in their applications weeks back and sent certified checks along with them, have received their checks back with the interesting information no tickets were to be had.

Yet speculators have them on the streets and are reaping a harvest from the out of town folks who had in applications and came here expecting to get their tickets without any bother.

Principal among the protesters are the representatives of the Boston Royal Rooters, who had been promised a hundred tickets in addition to the two hundred they had made arrangements for some time back, and received the news yesterday that the promise could not be fulfilled.

President Gaffney himself wired Mack about the matter and according to advice from Boston assured the rooters that the tickets had been offered him.

SPECULATORS HAVE TICKETS.

He made several efforts yesterday to try and straighten the matter out by wire, but with no success. He will, however, have a personal meeting with Garry Herrmann, chairman of the National Commission today in a last effort to keep good his word.

The Boston players have all brought over friends to take in the games and unless they can work out some way of getting their seats at legitimate prices will be forced to buy through the speculators.

The city is preparing to take on a World's Series appearance and every train is bringing in hundreds of fans, some with tickets and a lot without.

Newspaper correspondents are on the scene by the hundreds—real authors, artists, player experts and just regular baseball writers.

The Braves players, who are all, with the exception of [illegible], practically unknowns, are subject to innumerable interviews and meetings.

While the latter are bothersome, Manager Stallings welcomes rather than objects, for he figures that meeting people will keep the stars' minds occupied and consequently prevent their doing any unnecessary worrying.

HAPPY BUNCH OF CHAMPIONS.

As a matter of fact, however, a happier bunch of baseball champions never existed than the same Braves, who take to popularity like ducks to water and who have no fear of anything.

Their practice is full of ginger, every man acting like a player on the first [illegible] of a Spring training trip and not at all as athletes who have been working [illegible] of the under the greatest strain that ever a team had to contend with.

Charlie Deal [illegible] continues to be the observed of all observers. He has been looked over very carefully by the advisory board of the Braves outfit, and voted all right in every particular.

It is commonly [illegible] by the players that the youngster is a better man in the field than was Smith, though the latter [illegible] and wonderful [illegible] through [illegible] will be [illegible] missed unless [illegible] used to knock [illegible] the lot in the International League last year finds [illegible].

STALLINGS WELL SATISFIED.

This, however, is looked for by more than one of the Braves, all of whom are pulling heart and soul for the youngster. And despite his difficult position [illegible] matters very [illegible] as Captain [illegible] as Johnny Evers, Rabbit Maranville and the rest of the Braves.

Stallings is satisfied that his team is in perfect [illegible] for the great windup and is confident that Boston will be looked out for in very efficient style by his bunch of warriors.

"I thought at first that Smith's would put a big hole in the team," he said this morning, "but now I'm beginning to think otherwise."

The accident, together with what happened about tickets and the park since we arrived here has kindled to its best effectiveness the fighting spirit which has always been the greatest asset of the Braves. We go into the series ready to die fighting.

"SPECS" DO BIG BUSINESS.

BOSTON FANS TURNED DOWN.

War broke loose today, however, [illegible] number of fans gathered at the American League park [illegible] an explanation. The anger of the crowd was aroused when it was learned that the players on the Philadelphia Nationals, who had applied in a body for tickets a [illegible] before the season ended, were [illegible] among those refused, and the arrival of the police [illegible].

Hardly had the ticket office opened than speculators began to sell seats for the games three and five dollars above the regular prices.

There isn't a reserved seat ticket to be had for any of the games scheduled to be played in American League grounds here except through speculators.

DISTRIBUTION OF TICKETS STARTS AT FENWAY PARK

The distribution of World's Series tickets opened at Fenway Park early today, although it had been originally intended to start the ticket sale yesterday.

The second checking of the tickets was completed late yesterday afternoon, after which Secretary Herman Nickerson and Assistant Treasurer Frederick B. Kileen of the Boston National League Club mailed the notification cards to those whose applications for seats had been filled.

These were handed over personally to Postmaster Murray, who in turn summoned Superintendent of Delivery Ezra O. Winsor and Clerks A. A. Ledwidge, M. L. Welch and H. H. McDonald of the mailing division who immediately assumed charge of the much coveted cards.

The ticket offices at Fenway Park will be open until 6 o'clock this evening and the same hours will prevail on both tomorrow and Saturday.

Monday morning the ticket office will open for late comers a bit earlier than usual, but at 10 o'clock the exchange of notification cards for tickets will cease.

Those who have not taken out their tickets by that hour will lose out, and the tickets will be placed on public sale, two to each person, as long as the supply holds out.

The first game played in Boston of the World's Series will start at 2 p. m. Monday.

The gates will be opened at noon for reserved sections, while the "rush seat" entrances and box offices will be opened at 11:30 o'clock in the morning.

The entrance to the grand stand and boxes [illegible] Jersey street where [illegible] the capacity. The third [illegible] section (which is reserved [illegible]) will be entered from [illegible] street where two stiles [illegible].

The holders [illegible] reserved seat tickets for the games should use the [illegible] on Jersey street. All [illegible] box [illegible] seat [illegible] enter through turnstiles [illegible] street.

The [illegible] Band will furnish a concert program from 12:30 until the start of the game.

Found--A Love Talisman

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THIS is an age of Efficiency in most things. Our business life is run on principles of Efficiency—our social life and even our religious life is efficiently managed and arranged. I propose that we introduce the same principles in our loving!

And the first thing to do is to pay some attention to the rights and desires of the "party of the other part." To really love you should have a definite idea of the beloved one's temperament. Don't merely care after your own idea of caring and as you would like to be loved. Remember that your beloved is an individual with ideals and ideas and desires of his or her own. Give the type of affection that means something to your love as well as to you.

I once heard a girl say, "I'd rather have a dandelion when I wanted it than a dozen American Beauties merely when Tom chooses to give them to me."

I know of a neat little lass in moderate circumstances who is loved by a prosperous young chap who likes to see her advertise his generosity and ability to exercise it. He takes her to the theatre twice a week and always gives her a bunch of flowers to wear. Now the girl hates to stain her few simple little frocks with flower stems or to mar them with pins, but to satisfy his ideas of showing his love for her, she must wear the flowers he gives her, and then contrive somehow the rest of the time to cover over the marks they leave on her dresses.

Don't you see that the man is one-sided in his loving? He is doing what pleases his idea of how to show a girl affection and attention, but he is failing to make his attentions really count by appealing to the object of them. He is not really selfish, but he might as well be as he stupidly inefficient.

One of the happiest young married couples I know have few tastes in common. But they have one great thing in common—efficient common-sense. And the young wife accompanies the husband to ball games in which she takes very little interest and gets all her fun out of the fact that he is having the best kind of a time. The man, who does not care for society and dinners per se, goes to many functions and enjoys them because his pretty young wife finds them thrillingly interesting. They are efficient sweethearts.

Many an "ideal love" wrecks on the reef of too much one-sidedness of point of view. Because you like comic operas, Lucy, it does not mean that John must fail to find any fun in the drama or grand opera. And because you, John, like dancing is more does not mean that Lucy will find golf a delightful substitute therefor.

If you, as sweetheart or wife, practice the principle of efficiency you will be able to put yourself in your beloved's place—you will be able to get this angle of vision and to see things from his point of view. In which, with discerned and pleasant tolerance of your weaknesses and his too, you allow human nature to have its innocent way in the minor amusements and peculiarities of life, your love affair bids fair to proceed smoothly and happily from courtship to marriage and from marriage to joyous life together.

HOW TO DO THE LULU-FADO.

In this, the second of a series of articles on modern dancing, Miss Margaret Hawkesworth gives her readers a complete course of instruction in the turriente steps of the new dance which promises to rival the Fox Trot in popularity.

A Pompous Inspector

The pompous inspector jumped on the car and proceeded to examine the passengers' tickets. He came to one tired individual, who appeared too sleepy or ill to look for his ticket, and made no attempt to do so.

The ponderous one curbed his impatience and went round to the other passengers. Then he came back to the drowsy one, who still evinced no intention of producing his ticket.

"Now, you'll have to do one of three things," said the inspector authoritatively, "show your ticket, pay your fare, or get out." Thus threatened, the tired passenger produced his ticket, and, having done so, prepared to leave the car.

Turning to the inspector, he said, "I say, young fellow, you'll also have to do one of three things."

"And what are they, pray?" demanded the angry inspector.

"Walk more, eat less—or bust! Good afternoon!"

"Oh, for the Old-Time Girl"

Julia Sanderson Gives Her Recipe for What She Thinks Young Women Should Be

By MAUDE MILLER

"OH, for the days of powdered wigs and beauty spots," sighed Miss Julia Sanderson, who is starring in the new musical comedy, "The Girl from Utah." Miss Sanderson is not a feminist—far from it. She has no radical ideas on woman suffrage, she is just a real girl, the kind of a girl who would appeal to everyone, and here is her recipe, all you people who would have many attractions to boast of.

"Oh, for the grandmother girl," she sighed again. "I am so tired of the twentieth century when all the girls drive their own motor cars and are as good a stroke on the crew as any of their brothers. Today it seems as though to be attractive a girl must be as rawboned as any man. Not to be able to attract attention is as great a fault as any great sin would have been long ago.

"The trouble with the world of girls is that almost all of them are beginning to forget that they are feminine. I wonder why? I don't suppose if they knew about it, they would do some of the things they do, because when the time arrives that each and every girl can do everything a man does, that time will usher in an era of absolute practicality.

Two Poses of Charming Julia Sanderson.

"No longer will there be anything for a man to wonder about, no longer will he lie awake nights thinking whys and hows. He will simply say to himself, there isn't anything very wonderful about a woman any more. After all, she is very much like a man. And there you are. Do you want things to be that way, girls? I don't believe you really do.

"All this doesn't mean that a girl should not be able to do things. By a feminine woman, I don't mean an effeminate one. A girl should do nice healthy things, swim a little, play tennis, walk a great deal, keep her mind up to date. But far better than soiling her freshness with a dash after masculinity, she should think healthy things, the kind of things that a girl should always have on her mind.

ADVICE ABOUT HOW TO REMOVE UNSIGHTLY HAIR

Many physicians use the ingredients contained in El Rado for removing hair in connection with their laboratory work. This shows conclusively how perfectly harmless its action is. Thousands of women have discovered this, too, and have learned how totally unnecessary it is to go around with unbeautiful growths on lip, chin, cheek, neck or arms. They apply a few drops of El Rado, the liquid hair remover. Almost instantly the hair vanishes, leaving the skin smooth, velvety and even whiter than before. This is because, positively without the slightest harm, the hair has been dissolved.

El Rado is now a standard toilet article, used by thousands of women. You need have no more hesitation in asking for and using El Rado than in asking for and using a toilet powder. Try El Rado on your arm; prove for yourself that it will do everything claimed. Your money back if you are not entirely satisfied. WAS there ever a soldier who did not fight for peace? Was there ever a call for more army corps or guns that was not made in the name of peace? He had his ready argument, spoken with the forcible conviction of an expert.

"The war was made for peace—the only kind of peace that there can be," he said. "Any ambition, if any glory comes to me out of this war, is to have later generations say: He brought peace!"

Though the premier, could he have heard this, might have smiled, even grinned, he would have understood Westerling's unconsciousness of inconsistency. The chief of staff had set himself a task in victory which had no military connection. Without knowing why, he wanted to win ascendency over her mind.

"The man of action!" exclaimed Marta, her eyes opening very wide, as they were apt to let in the light when she heard something new that pleased her or gave food for thought. "The man of action, who thinks of an ideal as a thing not of words but as the end of action!"

"Exactly!" said Westerling, sensible of another of her gifts. She could get the essence of a thing in a few words. "When we have won and set another frontier, the power of our nation will be such in the world that the Browns can never afford to attack us," he went on. "Indeed, no two of the big nations of Europe can afford to make war without our consent. We shall be the arbiters of international dissensions. We shall command peace—yes, the peace of force, of fact! If it could be won in any other way I should not be here on this veranda in command of an army of invasion. That was my idea—for that I planned." He was talking up to her having overshot himself in his confession that he had brought on the war as a final step for his ambition.

"You mean that you can gain peace by propaganda and education only when human nature has so changed that we can have law and order and house as safe from burglary and pedestrians from pickpockets without policemen? Is that it?" she asked.

"Yes, yes! You have it! You have found the wheat in the chaff."

SAW HUMAN NATURE

"Perhaps because I have been seeing something of human nature—the human nature of both the Browns and the Grays at war. I have seen the Browns thrilling to the grenade and the Grays in wanton disorder in our dining room directly they were out of touch with their officers!" she said sadly, as one who hates to accept disillusionment but must in the face of logic.

Westerling made no reply except to nod, for a movement on her part preoccupied him. She leaned forward, as she had when she had told him he would become chief of staff, her hands clasped over her knee, her eyes searching with a question. It was the attitude of the prophecy. But with the prophecy she had been a little mystical; the fire in her eyes had precipitated an idea. Now it forged another question.

"And you think that you will win?" she asked. "You think that you will win!" she repeated with the slow emphasis which demands a careful answer.

The deliberateness of his reply was in keeping with her mood. He was detached; he was a referee.

"Yes, I know that we shall. Numbers make it so, though there be no choice of skill between the two sides."

His tone had the confidence of the flow of a mighty river in its destination on its way to the sea. There was nothing in it of prayer, of hope, of desperation, as there had been in Lanstron's "We shall win!" spoken to her in the arbor at their last intervtew. She drew forward slightly in her chair. Her eyes seemed much larger and nearer to him. They were sweeping him up and down as if she were seeing the slim figure of Lanstron in contrast to Westerling's sturdiness; as if she were measuring the might of the five millions behind him and the three millions behind Lanstron. She let go a half-whispered "Yes!" which seemed to reflect the conclusion gained from the power of his presence.

"Then my mother's and my own interests are with you—the interests of peace are with you!" she declared.

A GLEAM OF VICTORY

She did not appear to see the sudden, uncontrolled gleam of victory in his eyes. By this time it had become a habit for Westerling to wait silently for her to come out of her abstractions. To disturb one might make it unproductive.

"Then if I want to help the cause of peace I should help the Grays!"

The exclamation was more to herself than to him. He was silent. This girl in a veranda chair desiring to aid him and his five million bayonets and four thousand guns! Quixote and the windmills—but it was amazing; it was fine! The golden glow of the sunset was running in his veins in a paean of personal triumph. The profile turned ever so little. Now it was looking at the point where Dellarme had lain dying. Westerling noted the smile playing on the lips. It had the quality of a smile over a task completed—Dellarme's smile. She started; she was trembling all over in the resistance of some impulse—some impulse that gradually gained headway and at last broke its bonds.

"For I can help—I can help!" she cried out, turning to him in wild indecision which seemed to plead for guidance. "It's so terrible—yet if it would hasten peace—I—I know much of the Browns' plan of defence! I know where they are strong in the first line and—and one place where they are weak there—and a place where they are weak in the main line!"

LIKE A BUGLE CALL

"You do!" Westerling exploded. The plans of the enemy! The plans of neither Bouchard's saturnine cunning, nor bribes, nor spies could ascertain! It was like the bugle-call to the hunter. But he controlled himself. Yes, yes! He was thoughtful and guarded.

"Do you think it is right to tell?" Marta gasped half inarticularly.

"Right? Yes, to hasten the inevitable—to save lives!" declared Westerling with deliberate assurance.

"I—I want to see an end of the killing! I—" She sprang to her feet as if about to break away tumultuously, but paused, swaying unsteadily, and passed her hand across her eyes.

"We intend a general attack on the first line of defence tonight!" he exclaimed, his supreme thought leaping into words.

"And you would want the information about the first line tonight if—if it is to be of service?"

"Yes, tonight!"

Marta brought her hands together in a tight clasp. Her gaze fluttered for a minute over the tea-table. When she looked up her eyes were calm.

"It is a big thing, isn't it?" she said. "A thing not to be done in an impulse. I try never to do big things in an impulse. When I see that I am in danger of it I always say: 'Go by yourself and think for half an hour!' So I must now. In a little while I will let you know my decision."

Without further formality she started across the lawn to the terrace steps. Westerling watched her sharply, passing along the path of the second terrace, pacing slowly, head bent, until she was out of sight. Then he stood for a time getting a grip on his own emotions before he went into the house.

Children's Hair Troubles

Much harm results from washing a child's head with common soaps and shampoos, as some of them contain too much alkali.

This makes the scalp rough and dry, and often leads to a diseased condition, which causes the hair to fall out. A safe thing to use is a shampoo made of pure Refined Creamy Soap, White of Eggs, Cocoanut Oil, Glycerin and Salicylic Acid. Birt's Head Wash is made of these ingredients. It removes the dirt and disease germs that settle in the hair and on the scalp, and it makes the hair vigorous and glossy.

Drug and department stores sell it in hygienic tubes at 25c.

Teething time is hard enough on the babies, without having to be neglected, too. But what is a busy, tired woman to do? She has so much work she must do, that the baby must be left to cry and fret until it is done. Every mother knows how hard it is to want to comfort the little dears, and not have the time to do it.

But babies can be kept happy and mothers rested and well if women will use the easy-way soap to help them with their housework. Fels-Naptha is the easy-way soap, because it is the cool-water, no-hard-rubbing soap. It cleans everything it touches, dissolves dirt, takes out stains, removes grease; and all this in cool or lukewarm water.

MONEY MARKET SHOWS EASIER TONE IN BOSTON

By W. H. ROSS.
Financial Editor.

There has not been much change in business conditions so far this week, but sentiment seems to be improving all the time and this is bound to help trade. It is reported that money is easier in Boston and that banks are more willing to make loans. New call money has loaned at 6 per cent. and the highest grade of commercial paper has sold as low as 6½. Seven per cent. is the ruling rate. The Bank of England statement today is the best for weeks. Proportion of reserve to liabilities is 24.54 per cent., compared with 22.81 a week ago. It has $282,780,000 in bullion, a gain of $19,200,000 in gold within a week. Its minimum rate of discount remains at 5 per cent. The $100,000,000 gold pool has not weakened sterling exchange. One encouraging sign is increased exportation of cotton. More inquiry for commercial paper is reported in New York, where the bond market is expanding. In regard to the latter, municipal securities are in most demand. Talk of reopening stock exchanges on a cash basis continues.

BILLION DOLLARS FOR FARMERS.

It is figured that with wheat selling at the prevailing price American farmers will receive a billion dollars for this year's crop, as the estimate of the size of the latter by government experts is nearly 900,000,000 bushels. Last year's what crop was very large, but the one harvested in 1914 will total almost 130,000,000 bushels more. It is the largest ever known. More corn, oats, barley and flax have been grown this year than last. If farmers have a billion dollars to spend it will represent purchasing power of enormous influence for good upon general trade. In fact this year's huge crops are this country's best prosperity guarantee.

COTTON ACREAGE LIMITATION.

The movement in the South to limit the amount of land planted for cotton next season is spreading. The idea is to prevent the supply, with the surplus to be left over because war in Europe has diminished foreign consumption, from becoming too much for manufacturing needs. In a special message to the Legislature Governor Colquitt recommends the passage of a law limiting the acreage of each grower in Texas next season to twenty acres. As to providing relief for planters who have more cotton now than they can sell, President Wilson informed a North Carolina delegation that he believes there is now so much currency in circulation that further legislation is not needed. He approves, however, of the plan to form a banking pool to raise $150,000,000 to loan on cotton, but is opposed to the plan of Representative Henry of Texas to have Congress authorize the issue of $500,000,000 in federal notes for to relieve the cotton situation.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

It is reported that the copper market is at a standstill and that there is practically no buying at any price.

Tenders for the latest $75,000,000 six-month Treasury bills issued by the British government to raise war revenue totalled $152,465,000.

Pig iron production decreased last month, amounting to 1,882,718 tons, compared with 1,995,261 for August.

MOTOR NEWS

By J. C. KERRISON.

There has been a large increase in automobile touring in America this season. This is due largely to the purchase of cars by farmers and others in the Middle West, great numbers of whom have toured to the eastern seaboard and the New England mountain resorts.

Hotels in the East report that there have been probably fifty tourists of this class this season to one in past Summers. They are mostly owners of medium and low-priced cars who seek the popular priced hotels rather than the expensive ones that have drawn most of the automobile trade heretofore.

The touring information bureau of the American Automobile Association estimates the increase in touring, conservatively, at 20 per cent. more than last year and reports an unprecedented influx of Western tourists to New England, New York and New Jersey coast resorts.

C. F. Redden, sales manager of the Maxwell Motor Company, has notified his company that he will sail for home on the steamship Minnehaha on Saturday. Mr. Redden's return will throw much light on business conditions in foreign fields as he has been in close touch with all branches of the industry and his prediction as to the future of European business from an American standpoint will be awaited with interest.

* * *

E. M. Cutting, formerly assistant treasurer of the Pope Manufacturing Company, and one of the pioneers in the motor industry, has become identified with the C. P. Rockwell, Inc., distributors of Jeffery cars and trucks in New England.

In order that its employes may enjoy their annual outing, the Boston branch of the B. F. Goodrich Company will be closed all day Saturday next.

The winding up of the 1914 season for New England motorcycle racing will take place at Readville Park on Columbus Day. Gathering of speed stars from all over the country will assemble to test their speed for the final races of the season. The track at Readville is one of the fastest in the circuit, and there is every reason to believe that national records will be once more smashed. At the races held at this track on Labor Day the record for 100 miles was smashed and a new record for New England established, the distance being covered in ninety-six minutes flat. Records for five and ten miles were also established. Among the attractions to be staged will be an exhibition race between an automobile of special racing type against a motorcycle with ported cylinders.

JOSEPH P. COLLINS OF ROXBURY BUYS A BALE OF COTTON

Joseph P. Collins and photograph of check he gave in payment for his bale of cotton.

Joseph P. Collins of the Roxbury Piano Storage Salesroom Company joined the Buy-a-Bale-of-Cotton movement today.

He sent his check to the AMERICAN, with a hearty indorsement of the great movement organized by the AMERICAN and the other Hearst papers to help the South.

While Mr. Collins was giving his impetus to the movement here, word came from all over the country of extensive purchases. Harry P. Belsinger & Co. of the cloak and suit industry in New York, bought a bale, and there were many orders elsewhere.

The Southern Society of New York is arranging to give a "Cotton Ball" at the Waldorf-Astoria, on the evening of Thursday, November 12.

The proceeds are to be devoted to replenishing the relief fund that the society maintains for assisting Southerners who may be in distress. As the demoralization in the cotton market will, in all probability, increase the number of Southern people who may become dependent upon the charity of the society, its officers and entertainment committee are especially anxious to make this "Cotton Ball" a great success.

M'ADOO INVITED.

By way of assisting the cotton producers of the South through popularizing the use of cotton goods, the managers intend to request that every lady attending shall wear a costume made of and trimmed with cotton materials. The decorations of the ballroom will be distinctly Southern in character, and cotton, both in the ball and in the bale, will be largely used.

The names of the committee having the affair in charge will include many men and women prominent both politically and socially in New York, Washington and cities of the South. Secretary McAdoo has been asked to be honorary chairman of the committee.

Dispatches from Washington say that the efforts of the Southern Congressmen to force action by Congress to relieve the cotton situation in the South, seems sure of success.

At a meeting of the members from Southern States preparations were made to compel the passage of a measure of relief. Representatives of the Farmers' Union also attended.

The announcement that the meeting would be held brought from the administration a delayed announcement that it would favor the plan suggested by Festus J. Wade of St. Louis, providing for the creation of a pool of $150,000,000 and the early passage of the Smith-Lever cotton warehouse bill.

FAVORS POOL PLAN.

The President informed members that he does not think additional financial legislation will be necessary. He believes that a pool should also be created in the Southeast, and that these two pools would afford immediate relief.

The President informed the North Carolina members also that he would favor a special rule for the passage of the Smith-Lever bill which authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to establish bonded cotton warehouses, and provides for the negotiability of the warehouse receipts.

A petition circulated by Representative Dies of Texas, asking for a special rule for this bill, was signed by about seventy members.

CRESCENZO IN 'LUCIA' PLEASES AT THE BOSTON

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

A tenor with a voice so like John MacCormack's that, if you were behind a curtain, you would feel sure he must be the great Irish artist was revealed at the Boston Theatre last night in the person of Attilio di Crescenzo.

This young Italian, who sang last season with the Montreal company, made his debut as Edgardo in "Lucia" and carried off the honors of the evening. He sings gracefully, easily and tunefully and with a little more assurance will be an ideal lyric tenor of the old school.

Mariam Ardini in the title role was another agreeable surprise. She is young and attractive and inexperienced, but her voice is beautiful and brilliant in the upper register, and she sang the mad scene very capably. Her voice is not yet flexible enough for arduous coloratura work but has great promise.

Di Biasi, a basso in the thankless role of Raymond, made a fine impression, and Arturo, the second tenor role, was sung by Giuliani, a man with a good voice. Our old friend Raymond Blanchart in the baritone part was also effective.

"Lucia" last night was a $5 show, and needs no apologies because of the low prices at which it was given. It was a spirited performance, though one could wish that Castillo, the conductor, paid more attention to the traditional tempi. Tonight "Trovatore."

Malden Burglars Flee After Fight

Search is being made in Malden for two robbers who were attempting to rifle the safe in the office of the Malden News, in Malden square, when they were surprised by Thomas C. Kenny, a reporter for the paper. He entered the building in the darkness, was attacked by two men, and, with his fists and a paper cutting knife, drove them off.

Treat Tuberculosis with Lime

THE MEDICAL RECORD (New York) of December 18, 1909, contains an exhaustive decussion of "The Treatment of Pulmonary Tuberculosis Based on the Assumption That the Dietetic Cause of the Disease Is Lime Starvation," written by Dr. John F. Russell.

In the course of this article Dr. Russell says: "The condition which is recognized as preceding the active development of tuberculosis in the adult may be considered as due to lime starvation. * * * Among inorganic substances, lime salts appear to be of special physiological importance * * * but if the salts are not in organic combination, it is difficult to suppose that the cells can appropate them for food."

Years of widespread use have confirmed us in the belief that the marked success of Eckman's Alterative in cases of pulmonary tuberculosis (consumption) and chronic throat and bronchial troubles is due in large measure to its content of lime, which is so combined with other remedial ingredients as to be easily appropriated by the cells.

Doubtless this method of compounding a vital element with other valuable agents has had much to do with the results obtained in many cases of these affections, which appear to have yielded to Eckman's Alterative. In any event, its administration has seemed to secure the desired result—and without causing digestive disturbance or discomfort.

As it contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, it is safe to try. Your druggist will order it for you if he is out of it, or you can send direct to the sole manufacturers.

Organized Labor in Massachusetts Has Adopted a Fine Legislative Program—It Deserves the Support of Everyone

Organized labor, as represented by the Massachusetts State Branch of the American Federation of Labor, has laid out a most excellent legislative program for the coming year. It deserves the attention and support of intelligent citizens of all parties. It is prophetic of coming events.

Among the important measures which these men have determined to promote in the coming session are:

Woman suffrage.

Public ownership and operation of street railways.

Home rule for cities and towns.

An eight-hour day for women in manufacturing and mechanical establishments.

The initiative and referendum.

The most important of these worthy measures is the initiative and referendum. This reform will place in the hands of the people the power to control their own legislation and take from the great corporations and the special interests the power to control legislation by controlling the Legislature through the various evil methods that have been for years, and still are, practiced.

By the referendum, it will be impossible for a law to become effective which these corporations have caused a corrupt and servile Legislature to pass if the people disapprove of it. All that will need to be done is for a certain number of citizens to sign a petition that this law be REFERRED to a vote of the people. Thus from the word "REFERRED" is derived the name of the reform—"REFERENDUM." If, when it is submitted to the people, it is approved, then it becomes an effective law. If it is disapproved, then it is nullified.

HOW MUCH WRONG, HOW MUCH INJUSTICE, HOW MUCH PLUNDERING OF THE PEOPLE WOULD HAVE BEEN SAVED IF THE REFERENDUM HAD BEEN A PART OF OUR CONSTITUTION DURING THE LAST FIFTY YEARS!

By the reform in our process of government called the "INITIATIVE," the people will be enabled to compel the passing of good laws which a corrupt and servile Legislature has persistently refused to pass. If, after it has become apparent that the people's representatives in the Legislature will not represent them and will not pass the law which the people want, then, under the "INITIATIVE" a certain number of people, let us say twenty-five or fifty thousand, signing a petition, may cause the desired law to be submitted to the whole people of the Commonwealth, and, IF THEY APPROVE OF IT ON ELECTION DAY, IT BECOMES A LAW.

These two reforms, the initiative and referendum, are more important than all the rest put together, because they are the means by which the others may be obtained, if a majority of the people of the Commonwealth want them.

The initiative and the referendum were first used in the republic of Switzerland AND THEY CONVERTED THE MOST CORRUPT INTO THE PUREST GOVERNMENT IN THE WORLD.

The cause of Woman Suffrage is in great danger this year and will need the support of every man who believes in it. The vote was passed with great difficulty last year, and MERELY provided that the citizens of the Commonwealth might decide whether they did or did not want woman suffrage. The Legislature almost defeated the proposal MERELY to LET THE PEOPLE decide themselves the question, as indeed it has defeated, year after year, other important proposals to let the people have a voice in their own government.

Under our absurd constitutional restrictions it is necessary that the Legislature shall pass twice in succession a vote to submit a constitutional amendment to the people, and women cannot be allowed to vote except by a constitutional amendment. Therefore, it will be necessary again this year to pass the same vote which was passed last year, submitting the question of woman suffrage to the citizens at the next election. Against that proposition will be arrayed some of the most powerful and selfish interests and prejudices which were ever marshaled against any measure in this State.

The Democrats and Progressives have pledged their representatives to vote for woman suffrage. Undoubtedly, they will carry a majority of the vote at the next election, but a Legislature under the influence of private interests cares nothing about the will of the people and laughs at majorities.

The proposal for public ownership of street railways is prophetic. Most of us are not aware in what strange places today lies hidden the settled conviction that public ownership is inevitable and is coming fast. It was only last Spring that Charles S. Mellen, former president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad and for ten years the most powerful personality in all New England, declared that he had long believed that public ownership was certainly coming, but did not dream that it would come so fast as it has approached during the last five years. It would surprise most of our citizens to know in what conservative quarters this fact is recognized.

Nothing prevents it from coming today except the difficulty of making our Legislature represent public opinion and the great inertia of our people generally. We have demonstrated in recent years the remarkable capacity of our government to conduct business efficiently and honestly when let alone by the corrupting influences of private interests.

The wonderful efficiency of our government in the construction of the Panama Canal, the wonderful results which we have achieved in the parcels post, and above all the cherished institution of our liberties and progress, our American public school, is the evidence that we would do well with public ownership and operation. The corruption and extortionate inefficiency with which our railroads and street railways and all forms of public utilities have been managed is evidence on the other hand of the necessity for public ownership.

Home rule for cities and towns is sound both in theory and practice. It is of the very essence of self-government. Only when the rights of the local community conflict with the rights of the greater number should the absolute power of home rule be restricted.

An eight-hour day for women and children is a practical ideal which the standards of our community will soon reach and pass. Before long eight hours will not only be demanded for women and children but also for men.

The AMERICAN wishes success to this excellent program of organized labor before the coming Legislature and commends it to the attention and encouragement of all its intelligent readers.

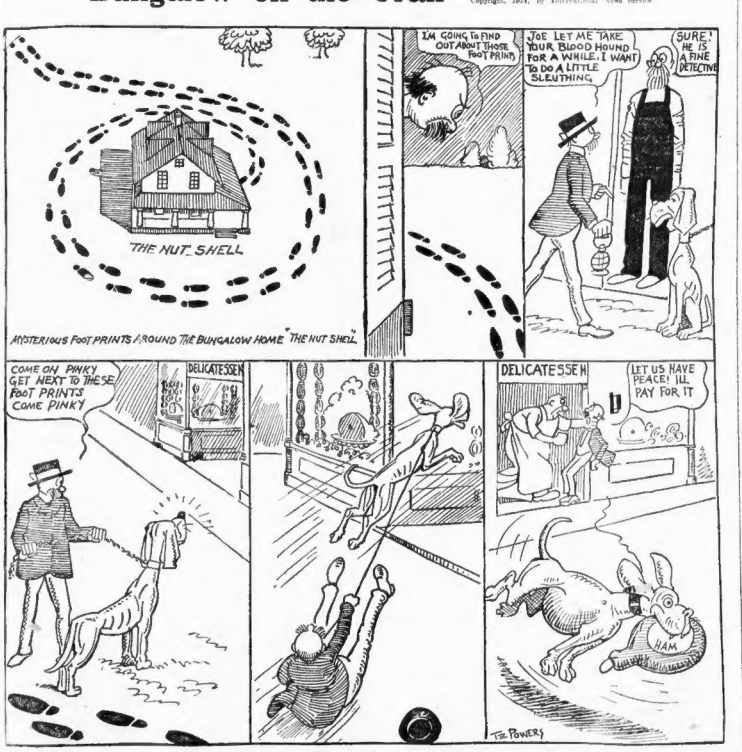
Bungalow on the Trail

By T. E. POWERS

Copyright, 1914, by International News Service



Here are those mysterious footprints around the Bungalows' villa, The Nutshell. Bungalow can stand it no longer, and he borrows a bloodhound to trail the unknown visitor to his home. Sherlocko the Monk had nothing on Bill. You can see for yourself, in the third picture, that the bloodhound's keen nose has caught the scent of something. Now we shall find that nightly prowler. But, no! ham before honor, thinks the sleuth-hound, and Bungalow has to pay the damages. In the meantime, who does make those mysterious footprints?

How to Attract Men

The Girl Who Wants to Win a Young Man's Affections Must Neither Throw Herself at His Head Nor Adopt a North Pole Attitude—A Golden Mean's the Thing

By DOROTHY DIX

A YOUNG woman writes me a letter in which she says that she is in love with a young man who does not care for her, or even notice her, beyond showing her ordinary civility when they meet, and she wants to know how she can attract this young man, and win his affections.

Goodness, gracious! If I could answer that question and tell a woman how to make a man fall in love with her, I shouldn't be digging away on a newspaper. I would be established in the soothsaying business, with money rolling to me by the truck load.

Why a man falls in love with some particular woman nobody knows—he, least of all. There is a certain something about her that attracts him to her, but he can no more explain it than the needle can tell why it points to the north. Underlying all love between man and woman is the mystery of sex attraction that is still the great unsolved problem of the universe.

No woman can really make a man fall in love with her. When it comes to winning love a man has a better opportunity than a woman, because women have a greater faculty for falling in love than men have, they are easier pleased, and altogether more responsive to the tender passion than men. Also they are flattered at the palpable efforts that men make to win them, whilst most men are disgusted at the efforts that women make to capture them.

A Disadvantage

This puts the woman who is in love with a man who is not in love with her at a terrible disadvantage. There is literally almost nothing that she can do toward capturing him. The most that is permitted her is, as our good Methodist friends say, to put herself in the attitude to receive the blessing.

Undoubtedly there are many pretty, intelligent and really charming girls who do not attract men, and who never have a beau because of the manner that they assume toward men. They are either too anxious, or they overplay, and appear too indifferent.

Unless a man is already head over heels in love with a girl, nothing drives him away so quickly as for her to throw herself at his head. No man wants to be run after—or at least to perceive that he is being run after. It hurts his masculine vanity to think that any woman is clever enough to outwit him and marry him, and so the minute a woman shows her hand and lets him perceive that she is after him, it's all over with him.

This is a truism as old as the hills, and yet there are girls who are fools enough to let a man see that they are flattered to death at his attentions, who are forever calling him up on the telephone and reproaching him for not having been to see them, and who deluge him with forty-page letters when, perhaps, he hasn't written anything but one measly little note.

All of this is fatal to any girl's chance of catching a man. There is no sport in shooting the tame bird that comes and rests on your gun barrel. No man opens his mouth to catch the over-ripe peach that is ready to drop into it. It is ever the unattainable, the difficult or the firefly that dances just before a man's eyes and just out of his reach that lures him on.

Equally Fatal

On the other hand, it is equally fatal to a girl's chances of attracting a man for her to adopt a North Pole attitude. There are girls whose idea of playing coy is to be repellant and sarcastic, and to say cutting things about the masculine sex. They affect to be man-haters, and to despise matrimony, and to pine for single blessedness, and the majority of men take them at their word and leave them to hang on the parent stem.

This is the silliest sort of a pose, because to be desired a woman must show herself desirable. Only in novels are men found sighing at the feet of haughty and contemptuous damsels. Nor is there anything in the lady with a disposition with as many sharp points to it as a porcupine that makes any man feel that he would like to take her home for a nice household pet.

Between these two extremes, however, is the golden mean wherein a girl who likes a man should show herself pleased at his attentions, but not tickled to death; where she should welcome his visits with cordiality but not with effusion; where she should answer some of his letters but refrain from answering them all even if she should have to throw away her ink bottle and sit with gloves on her hands to prevent herself from penning long effusions. If she is foxy she will contrive to ensnare some other man into paying her attentions, and she won't always be at home whenever the man thinks that he would like to drop in and see her, having nothing else to do.

Any girl is a fit candidate for the feeble-minded home who ever permits any man to monopolize her until after the wedding day is named, for men are like sheep. They always follow the leader, and to the girl who has many beaus, many other beaus shall be given, but to her who has but one beau, even that one shall be taken away.

It is also true that a discreet girl who wishes to attract a man may help her cause by throwing herself adroitly in his way. If he is fond of books he will be drawn to her by finding out accidentally—special emphasis on the accidentally—that she has the same Bernard Shaw taste he has. If he is a golf fiend he may notice her for the first time when he stumbles upon her on the links. If he is a baseball fan he may take to her for the sake of heart-to-heart talks about the major league, but all of this requires discretion, and the moral of it, as Captain Cuttle would say, is in the application of it.
